Premier's Death Denied

LAGOS (AP)—Nigeria's military government officially denied Thursday reports published overseas that Lateef Akintola had announced the death of former federal Prime Minister Sir Abubakar Tafawa Balewa.

Bill Rejected, Premier Shaky

ROME (UPI)—Premier Aldo Moro's shaky centre-left coalition government received a severe setback when Parliament rejected a state murex bill on which he had won a confidence vote only 24 hours previously. The Chamber of Deputies voted 250 to 221 to reject the bill.

Gasoline Addict Nipped Quart a Week

He Had Tiger on His Back

LONDON (Reuters)—An auto mechanic in India, who accidentally swallowed gasoline while siphoning a tank, became probably the world's first gasoline addict, the British Medical Journal says.

The journal prints an article by Dr. Vinodh Karani, formerly registrar in the department of neurology at a Bombay group of hospitals, which says the mechanic drank the gasoline when he was 17 years old.

From then on, he took about a quart of gasoline a week, either drinking it or inhaling a soaked wad, and was "oblivious of everything else."

Dr. Karani said the man's legs became weak and he was admitted to a hospital. For the first week he found it difficult to overcome the addiction, but gradually, he improved. After eight months, he recovered completely.

The case appears to be the first of intoxication resulting from the triethoxycetyl phosphate content of gasoline, the doctor writes.

Miners Dig For Trip

TRAIL (CP)—Miners agreed Thursday to ask for one week's paid vacation plus travelling expenses so they can attend the Montreal world's fair next year.

Delegates to the Canadian convention of the International Mine, Mill and Smelter Workers' Union said workers "who have done so much to build Canada" should get a free trip to enjoy the centennial-year fair.

Pearson Switch on Viet Nam

Disregard Geneva

By FRANK KELLY

Colonist Ottawa Bureau

OTTAWA—The ultimate solution to the war in Viet Nam may be the recognition of two independent and neutral Vietnamese communities. Prime Minister Pearson told the Commons last night.

"So long as the problem is approached in terms of partisan regimes or national liberation struggles we run the risk of obscuring the basic fact that there are now two communities in Viet Nam."

DEFENSE PROGRAM

"We also run the risk of misjudging the possibility of one community gaining complete ascendancy over the other by military means or by subversion, or by any other means not based on the clearly expressed choice of the people concerned," he said.

Mr. Pearson spent a good deal of his speech defending government programs outlined in the throne speech discussing international affairs.

POLICY CHANGE

His statement on Viet Nam was regarded as a significant departure from stated American and Canadian policies to date.

Both countries have generally favored a return to the terms of the 1954 Geneva Accord which called for eventual reunification of North and South Viet Nam and free elections.

Mr. Pearson admitted that acceptance of the two Viet Nams, like two Germanys and two Koreas, would not be particularly satisfying to anyone.

BATTERED BOAT FOUND--EMPTY

By BOB PETHICK

Searchers Thursday found the empty and battered boat in which three Victoria boys went missing Saturday. There was no sign of the boys.

Engineless and upside down at the tide mark on Dungeness Spit, 12 miles east of Port Angeles, lay the 12-foot clinker-built boat in which Dennis Powell and Ronald Hynds, both 18, and Wade Squire, 17, left Oak Bay Marina Saturday night.

The boat was spotted by Hynds' uncle, Keith Hynds, and pilot Al Rouat of Victoria Flying Services. Both men had flown many hours in search of the missing boys.

WOOD GOUGED

When they landed and pulled the boat up from the waterline, there was nothing inside. The bulwarks and stern showed signs of pounding and rubbing in sand, and on the stern where the engine had hung there was nothing but gouges in the wood. The boat was in good condition. Veteran mariners said Thursday night that the boat's location was in keeping with tidal patterns in the strait over the past few days, indicating a long period adrift.

SEARCH TODAY

An aerial beach search by the United States Coast Guard will be made today if weather permits. The search, which will be made by helicopters based at Port Angeles, was requested by Inspector George Mackay, head of Victoria RCMP subdivision. Pilot Rouat was about to call off the search and head for home when the boat was spotted.

MEASUREMENTS

"We landed and pulled it up," said Mr. Hynds. They took measurements of the boat and took a lifting off the sternpost in hopes that Ralph Wherry, owner of the boat would be able to identify it.

But he couldn't, so they started out again from Patricia Bay after refueling.

COAST GUARD

Meanwhile, the Canadian Coast Guard cutter Ready and a Rescue Co-ordination Centre helicopter arrived on the scene, and Mr. Hynds' aircraft with Mr. Wherry aboard arrived in time to see the boat being picked up by helicopter and carried over to Patricia Bay.

"We lost about two hours of daylight," said Mr. Hynds.

"If the boat is there, there are probably other things there, too," he said.

"It could be the motor rubbed off and is close to where the boat was."

Ben Barka Kidnapping

Moroccan Minister Sought by French

PARIS (AP)—France issued an arrest warrant Thursday for Interior Minister Mohammed Oufkir of Morocco and two other persons believed involved in the Mehdi ben Barka political kidnapping.

The announcement from the public prosecutor's office carried serious implications on the state of relations between France and Morocco, already strained by the incident.

Oufkir admitted he was in Paris when ben Barka, a leftist Moroccan exile, was kidnapped Oct. 29, but he has declined invitations from French authorities to come back to aid in the investigation.

The warrant also named Maj. Ahmed Dini, director of the Moroccan internal security service, and another person listed only as Lardi Chouki.

U.K. Turns Screw, Fuel Ration Cut

LONDON (UPI)—The British government has told Rhodesia's Chief Justice Sir Hugh Beadle that it will not negotiate with rebel Prime Minister Ian Smith or his government, informed quarters said Thursday.

At the same time, the government made it a crime to export chrome from Rhodesia in a further escalation of Britain's economic war against its breakaway colony. Chrome is one of Rhodesia's chief metal exports.

In Salisbury, the Rhodesian government turned the screw tighter on motorists for the second time in a week Thursday because of the British-imposed oil embargo. Gasoline ration will be cut by 25 per cent on Jan. 23—for most motorists a cut from four to three gallons per week.

Welensky

Sir Roy Warns Rhodesia:

'Beware the Ides of March'

Sir Roy Welensky, former prime minister of the defunct Central African Federation, predicts that economic chaos will result from Rhodesia's refusal to negotiate with Britain. But he doesn't think the country can be starved into submission. A Canadian Press reporter who visited Rhodesia outlines Sir Roy's views in this story.

By DAVE MCINTOSH

SALISBURY Rhodesia (CP)—In the airport bar at Lusaka Zambia the waiter refused a proffered Canadian dollar in payment for a beer.

"Only American dollars Bwana," he said.

Not 50 yards away an RCAF Hercules transport plane was disgorging emergency gasoline supplies for Zambia.

It is an hour's run by Viscount airliner from Lusaka to Salisbury. The plane was crowded with whites. There was not a single African passenger.

It was a fine flight and the landing here was smooth.

Salisbury's airport is impressive by any standards and especially after Lusaka's collection of old Nissen huts.

There is little delay. The immigration officer is courteous. The immigration form requires you to state your race. A reply such as "100-yard dash" doesn't raise the ghost of a smile. The officer looks into a plain winter-bleached Canadian face and asks only: "Have you been in Rhodesia before?" The customs officer is a young woman also polite and efficient.

The downtown hotel is modern, equal to any in Canada. Yarmouth bloaters are on the breakfast menu. Toast is served in a silver rack. There is tea—but no tea bags.

without it, freedom in Asia would be over-run.

"But what about the CBC?" he pressed on.

According to its programs, you would think that the United States was one of the great enemies of mankind.

Mr. Diefenbaker offered to take over Mr. Pearson's job if his minority government is defeated in the non-confidence vote.

PEARSON FIRM

But Mr. Pearson retorted, in effect: "No dice. There'll be another election."

The exchange buried the debate over whether or not there could be a change of power without exposing Canadian voters to another election.

NDP MOTION

The vote will be counted today, on a New Democrat demand for an immediate increase in the old age pension from $75 to $100 at the age of 65.

The New Democrats moved a sub-amendment to a Tory non-confidence motion, to be voted Tuesday, that would also raise pensions to $100, but at age 69, scaling down to $75 by 1970.

CLOSE CALL

Today's vote will be close but the minority government seems assured of the critical support of Social leader Robert Thompson's band of five.

Creditist leader Real Caouette said last night he would vote for the New Democrat motion.

The Tories, also, are expected to follow suit, but they will make a final decision at a caucus today.

SMALL EDGE

With the New Democrats, this conceivably could mean up to 127 votes.

The minority government has 130 seats, allowing for the loss of one, who is the Speaker.

"There are those who say that when a vote of non-confidence is passed the government is defeated and it means an election," said Mr. Diefenbaker.

DISAGREES

"It means nothing of the kind, if the prime minister meant what he said during the election campaign."

"The prime minister would simply go to the governor-General and say, 'If there is any other party in the house that is prepared to accept the responsibility, they may do so.'"

PEARSON FIRM

Later, Mr. Pearson answered that view:

"This is a vote of confidence and the consequences of the defeat of the government on a vote of non-confidence are obvious under our parliamentary system."

That, a top cabinet minister spelled out later, meant an election.

What did New Democrat leader T. C. Douglas think about it all?

The idea of a switch of government without an election, he said, came strangely from Mr. Diefenbaker, who exoriated Mr. Pearson, then opposition leader in 1958, for making the same kind of suggestion.

Prime Minister Pearson countered the criticism with a stout defence of his announced legislative program, spelled out a $80,000,000 increase in aid to universities and indicated he will regard any defeat on a test of confidence as the call for another general election.

TWO MOTIONS

Mr. Diefenbaker and Mr. Douglas both presented motions that criticized the government for ignoring pension increases.

Mr. Pearson spelled out his government's plan on higher grants for universities. He said for 1966-67 the grants would be increased to $5 per capita from $2. This would be an interim measure and it was planned to work out long-term arrangements at a federal-provincial conference to be arranged within the next few months.

The effect of the increase would be for the federal payments to universities in that year to jump to about $100,000,000 from the current level of about $40,000,000.

Parliament Talks Rules

OTTAWA (CP)—While inter-party discussions continue toward agreement on what rules Parliament will use, the Commons Thursday agreed for a second day to proceed under the old set.

At the opening of Thursday's Commons sitting, Speaker Lucien Lamoureux was approved for his suggestion that he "ignore the clock" for the question period since discussions are continued.

Ides of March

tel will be the last bastion a lone guest observes.

At 6 a.m. it is already hot. Africans on foot and riding bicycles begin to fill the streets on the way to their menial jobs. There is little public transportation because all the whites have cars.

The oil embargo is an irritation but so far only a minor one. The normal ration is 1 1/2 gallons a week but the oil refinery is closing and Rhodesia hasn't enough railway tank cars. Even if it finds a petroleum source rationing is bound to get tighter.

FEW PATRONS

The new and used car business is falling off. The Ford assembly plant is laying off workers. Garages haven't as much work to do. A theatre which used to draw a packed house of 420 people every night now is getting about 70 customers each performance.

There are car pools or lift clubs as they are called here. "I never knew I had so many friends," one car owner with an extra ration said.

EXTRA FUEL

Another wrote a letter to a newspaper to thank a garage for allowing him enough extra fuel for his cigarette lighter.

A country limousine has installed a hitching post in his parking lot for farmers riding horses to fetch the mail and down a quick cart.

But this light-hearted attitude is by no means prevalent. The mood of Rhodesia is anger at Britain and especially at the British Labor government for imposition of sanctions.

HAFFEN STINK

William Harper minister of internal affairs tells a Rotary Club luncheon the name of the British government must be made to stink in the nostrils of the world and particularly those of the British people. He adds: "We can take it but we also intend to dish it out."

This is hardly a tone conducive to negotiations with Britain as the Rhodesian Herald noted in one of its editorials which was not censored.

MAIN SEATED

In the Rhodes cinema where The Ipcress File is playing along with a South African newswreel which doesn't show a single black African, many in the audience determinedly remain seated when God Save the Queen is played at the start.

Emotionalism is the guiding factor now says Sir Roy Welensky former prime minister of the defunct Central African federation which embraced now independent Zambia and Malawi as well as Rhodesia.

GRAPE VINES

Sir Roy lives 7 1/2 miles from town in a bungalow surrounded by mulberry, wisteria and Chinese lantern hedges growing grape vines and fig and pawpaw.

boat was found," Mr. Wherry said later.

On the second trip across, Mr. Wherry saw something red which he thought might have been a gasoline can, but when they circled they were unable to locate it again.

Mr. Hynds said Thursday he decided on the search trip as the weather was clearing in and it looked as though the full search was going to be called off.

An RCAF spokesman said a preliminary search of the Dungeness area Thursday turned up no sign of the missing trio.

The boys, all experienced outdoorsmen, left Oak Bay Marina about midnight Saturday night in the husky clinker-built boat bound for Discovery and Chatam Island.

At first it was believed they were going to shoot brant but later Mr. Squire, one of the fathers, said the boys had been carrying .22 rifles and were out to shoot rabbits.

When the float plane landed at Patricia Bay, Hynds and Mr. Wherry rushed to the spot where the helicopter left the boat.

Mr. Wherry looked at the craft resignedly: "That's it," he said.

A few minutes passed and Ronald Hynds' father, Herbert Hynds, arrived at the Victoria Flying Services building.

In the waiting room they sat and planned today's search.

By CPR

OTTAWA (CP)—The CPR has given the government fresh assurances it will meet its heavy commitments for export grain shipments in the current crop year, Finance Minister Sharp told the Commons Thursday.

Mr. Sharp, who met with top CPR executives earlier in the day to discuss the matter, said there are some "special problems" in the current massive grain movement from the West and these now are under study.

Labor Minister Nicholson said Thursday he can give no indication how long it will take to process applications by firms for deferment of the provisions of the Canada Labor Code.

The labor code setting minimum wages and hours of work was passed by Parliament last year but some firms are applying for deferments so they can adjust to its terms.

Stanley Knowles asked in the Commons whether the cabinet will grant an oral hearing to the Canadian Railway Labor Executives' Association in its appeal against discontinuance of the Dominion passenger train.

Prime Minister Pearson, in reply to the NDP MP for Winnipeg North Centre, said he has been consulting his colleagues on his reply to the employees' association can be a comprehensive one.

The Opposition made another attempt in the Commons Thursday to get the government to make public correspondence on the U.S.-Canada auto agreement.

But Industry Minister Deury said arguments last year that there are "good precedents for not tabling diplomatic correspondence" held good this year.

New Democratic Leader Douglas asked Agriculture Minister J. J. Greene when his promised inquiry into whether farmers are being exploited in farm machinery sales will be set up and

Four Violations

Truce Shattered
By Cong Snipers

SAIGON (UPI)—Viet Cong forces, apparently grabbing every opportunity to kill Americans, continued to open fire on U.S. troops as the Lunar New Year's truce moved into its second day Friday. There also were at least four violations reported in skirmishes involving Viet Namese troops.

The Viet Cong did not include Americans in their self-proclaimed cease-fire. Officials reported Thursday only three scattered skirmishes.

More than 12 hours after the Communist truce began, Viet Cong machine gunners tried to shoot down a medical evacuation helicopter.

A band of Viet Cong later opened up on soldiers of the U.S. Army's 301st Airborne Brigade near Tuy Hoa about 230 miles northeast of Saigon. The paratroopers returned the fire and killed one Viet Cong, a spokesman said.

The most blatant cease-fire violation involving government forces reported early Friday was in the Rung Sat special zone southeast of Saigon where a force of unknown size attacked Ly Nhon village. The Viet Cong slammed into the village and the defenders could not hold it. An estimated two Viet Cong companies attacked a government regional force company defending a bridge in Lam Dong province late Thursday.

Bomb
Missing

PALOMARES, Spain (UPI)—The U.S. Air Force said Thursday a Strategic Air Command B52 bomber that crashed near here Monday was carrying nuclear arms. A Spanish official said one atomic bomb was still missing.

An air force statement said the weapons were unarmed and there was no danger.

But the Spanish government clamped a complete domestic news blackout on word a nuclear bomber had crashed. Observers said officials feared anti-American repercussions if it became general knowledge in Spain.

A massive search by hundreds of airmen with geiger counters and radiation badges continued around the crash site in the heart of Spain's tomato-growing region, about 95 miles east of Granada on the southeastern coast.

An air force spokesman refused to confirm or deny that the search was for a bomb.

New White House Chef Wants Raise

'Glory Alone Is Not Enough'

WASHINGTON (UPI)—A Swiss-born New York hotel chef, who feels at home in the kitchen with fried chicken as well as Charlotte Russe, was named Thursday as the new White House chef.

He is Henry Haller, 43, executive chef of the Sheraton-East Hotel. He will succeed Rene Verdon, who quit Jan. 1 in a dispute over culinary tastes at the White House.

The French-born Verdon, who now works for a kitchen cutlery firm, had harsh words for the menus he was sent to prepare and—worst of all—for a suggestion that he use cookbook recipes.

Haller takes over the White House kitchen Feb. 1. Harold Bock, manager of the Sheraton-East, called Haller "possibly the finest chef in New York City and one of the finest in the country."

He is, Bock added, "loyal, hard-working, serious... resourceful and economical in a sensible way."

Haller said his government salary would be about what he was currently making, but that he was hoping to get a raise in Washington. "Glory alone is not enough," he said, "I have four children to feed."

He became chef de cuisine—the top spot in his field—in 1958 at the Hampshire House in New York. In 1962, he accepted the same position at the Sheraton-East.

Icy Winds

Britons

LONDON (CP)—Sharp winds originating in Southern Russia and Eastern Europe whipped across the English Channel and sent the thermometer tumbling to the freezing mark in Britain Thursday.

Thousands of workers in the Midlands—including many in the vital automobile industry—were thrown out of work as the cold weather and a mechanical failure in over-extended gas services forced hasty shutdown of scores of plants.

Thousands more were late for work as icy roads marred traffic and forced rail and underground trains to crawl.

Keep It at Home

RIGHTFUL indignation has been aroused by the proposition that a promotional firm from another country should be given the contract to stage the Confederation centennial celebrations here next year.

This idea is a denial of the upsurge in theatrical and associated circles that has marked this area with the re-creation of the McPherson Playhouse and the renewed activity of allied groups in our midst. Never was the realm of local entertainment and public attraction more vital and alive than it is at present.

The proposal is also one that downgrades the theatrical and musical talent that exists here in proved abundance, and which should be given every encouragement when celebrations of this type are due for presentation. It can even be considered an insult to local pride and prestige.

No matter that the outside firm in question put on the 1962 centennial pageant; the intervening years have enhanced the capacities and capabilities of local artists and the needed organizing qualities are not lacking. There is the undeniable fact in addition that a foreign firm cannot have the feeling of Canadian history and the nuances of ethos that should find expression in celebrations of this nature.

The cardinal point at issue is that the 1967 celebration here is a Greater Victoria show and it should be left to local resources to put on that show. It belongs to the people that are here.

Nor need there be any thought that local groups cannot cope with the varied programs that will be necessary. If harnessed together under professional direction available here this is a challenge that would be accepted with alacrity and enthusiasm—and with no small measure of success.

What need is there for an outside agency to arrange bargain days, banquets, balls, religious observances, ladies' day, arts and crafts display, for example, to mention a few of the events outlined by the firm in question as part of the centennial schedule it would supply. These are events of the kind common to every community any day of the week, and it is an absurdity that their management needs to be imported.

In any case next year's Confederation celebrations here are a local affair, and it should be left to local ingenuity and management to stage them. Greater Victoria should be prepared to stand or fall by the efforts of its own performers and producers.

The Intermunicipal committee which has some say in this matter should turn its thumbs down sharply on this ill-advised idea of bypassing local groups well able by their concerted efforts to stage the pageantry and attractions compatible with the 1967 centennial occasion.

Nehru's Daughter

INDIA HAS COME a very long way in a very short time in the emancipation of her women. As late as 1927 a widow of a Hindu had herself immolated on his funeral pyre, and the custom, known as suttee, was general until outlawed under British rule in 1829.

From the status of a slave or a chattel, in the eyes of the Western world, Indian women have leaped to a position of full equality with their one-time lords.

Madame Indira Gandhi, the new prime minister, exemplifies this rather startling emergence of Indian women from purdah, and their acceptance as capable of assuming the formerly wholly male mantle of responsibility—even to the extent of national leadership.

What of Madame Gandhi's effectiveness in the diplomatic field? Will her petite femininity—she is five feet two inches in height and frail almost to fragility—bring a chivalrous reaction from the gentlemen around the conference table?

It is entirely possible that in negotiations, for example, with Pakistan's president, Mohammad Ayub Khan, Madame Gandhi will have an advantage. His innate courtesy and cultivated charm would almost guarantee it.

There is one certainty. Madame Gandhi would never allow herself to be dominated in diplomacy by mere masculinity. She would be a match for any of them in debate. Her intellectuality will not dull her incisiveness.

Like Madame Chiang Kai-shek, she has beauty, poise and dignity, potent weapons if their possessor knows how and when to wield them.

It may be that Madame Gandhi's appointment has shaken the more conservative elements in India's political life, and elsewhere, and particularly at a time when her country is faced with a complexity of crises. But it is a brave experiment.

If there is a chance for success, the daughter of the late Jawaharlal Nehru is well equipped to seize it. She will certainly have the sympathy of all the world of women as she approaches her great task.

Heavy Toll

THERE HAVE BEEN many easy platitudes uttered about so-called "brush-fire" conflicts, such for example as military engagements that might call for a UN force to get into action. These can be as deadly to the troops involved as any war on a major scale.

Particularly to the officers concerned.

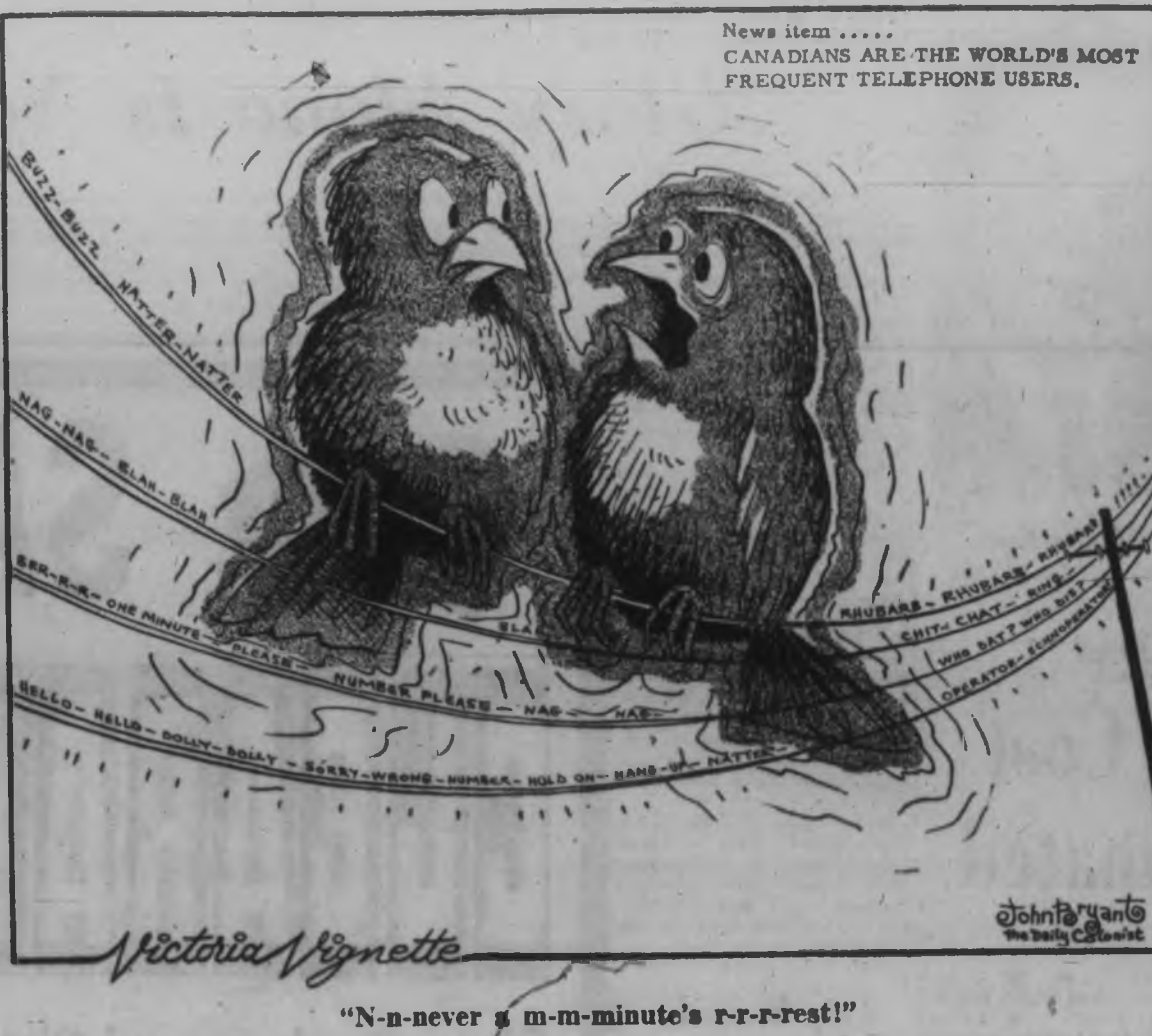

The officer corps can always expect to suffer severely in battle, since it is their job to lead the way into action and as become reader targets for destruction. Even so, however, figures issued by Washington on the Viet Nam struggle show disturbing comparison with large-scale warfare of recent memory.

Viet Nam is perhaps scarcely now a "brush-fire" but instead has escalated into what in this terminology has become a "forest fire," but it will come as a surprise nevertheless that the U.S. army is losing officers at a much heavier rate than it did in Korea.

Heavier even than in the last war, which was total in character and the weight of assault on both sides was as mighty as could be mounted.

To date about 19 per cent of American army battle deaths in South Viet Nam have been officers, compared with 5 per cent in Korea and 18 per cent in the Second World War. This is a ratio of almost one-fifth, and its severity can better be measured by realizing that a force of 1,000 officers and men does not contain anything like 200 officers.

The rate of officer attrition in South Viet Nam is therefore one that must give the Pentagon much cause for concern.

Ottawa Offbeat

In Opposition to 'Special Status'

By RICHARD JACKSON, Colonial Ottawa Bureau

NOT everybody shares Prime Minister Pearson's apparent enjoyment of what he has chucked publicly in "the delicious sense of humor" of Quebec Welfare Minister Rene Levesque.

The Quebec fireball who makes proud claim to co-leadership of what the "New Wave" in Quebec likes to call its not so "Quiet Revolution," has been sort of soft-pedalling his "special status" line in recent months, leading the political innocents to hope perhaps Premier Jean Lesage at last had managed to sit on him in the name of national unity.

But it was not to be. For there was Le Grand Rene, invading the very heart of the Centre Block on Parliament Hill to proclaim that there would be a "new Canada or no Canada," and that nothing short of "force" troops, he explained, adding "and you wouldn't attempt that"—would stop Quebec's march to a "status" so very "special" as to make it almost a "state" apart.

Perhaps it was out of embarrassment rather than amusement that Prime Minister Pearson laughed.

Rene Levesque was a great kiddier, he recalled, with "a really delicious sense of humor."

But it was back years ago—going in the mid-60s when he was still external affairs minister—that he had found Rene Levesque, then a CBC commentator, covering him on a trip to Moscow, to be such a delightful joker.

And the prime minister hadn't been among those present when this obviously and drastically different Rene Levesque marched into the precincts of Parliament to proclaim—and never in quite such a hard-headed way—his provincial protocols of political apartheid.

Rene Levesque hadn't intended to be funny.

He wasn't cracking jokes.

And nobody laughed.

Nobody, that is, except the prime minister.

Among the many who haven't been laughing are the members of the "Voice of Canada League."

This is a relatively new group. It's the exact opposite side of the coin.

Today In History

By The Canadian Press

Louis XVI of France was guillotined 173 years ago today—in 1793—aged 39. Although mentally dull and interested in nothing much besides hunting, Louis was popular and did not lose the loyalty of the Paris mob until the war with Austria, three years after the "revolution" of 1789. The war aroused hatred of Queen Marie Antoinette, an aunt of the Austrian emperor, and the king's enemies were able to use this. During Louis' trial, only an exact majority of 361 of 721 members of the Convention voted for the king's death.

1519—Panama City was founded.

1789—The First Letter of Junius was published in London.

First World War: Fifty years ago today—in 1916—the king and queen of Montenegro fled to Italy from the advancing Austrians; Russian artillery bombarded Turkish forts at Keremund.

Second World War: Twenty-five years ago today—in 1941—the British government banned two Communist newspapers: British troops penetrated five miles into Tobruk's defenses; Gen. Antonov, appointed to the fascist Iron Guard for help in restoring order in Romania.

One headmaster feels that certain subtle qualities are lost when national history is taught in some other language, but it is also possible to believe that some of these "subtleties" are of a kind that hinder the growth of the "complete" European.

The Americans, after all, have spent the past 20 years reviving the patriotic "subtleties" of the national view of the War of Independence out of their school textbooks. The children have no conceal their affiliation for fear of dismissal from their jobs.

The league, insists Deane Russell, is not "anti-French, simply all-Canadian."

The way the league sees it—and constitutionally it is on solid ground—the permissive use of French granted in the British North America Act cannot be construed as a contract to give it equal status with English clear across the nation.

Deane Russell charges that history is being falsified by some of the federal government departments in an effort to appease Rene Levesque. He cites a citizenship and immigration department pamphlet which suggests Canada is now and always has been a bilingual nation, and insists, quite accurately, that "constitutionally this simply isn't so."

Perhaps if nobody else can—and so far, nobody seems to—Deane Russell may be the one to answer Rene Levesque.

Canadian Education

EEC Sets an Example

By MAUR HERRON
(Second of Two Articles)

I AM not a specialist in education. I have no qualifications to write on schools or to commend one more than another, in our Canadian situation. The European Economic Community schools interest me as a parent whose children have been in school for 17 years and as the generations roll along look like being there for another 17. I am interested in what I deem to be in their best interest and in what will help them to live the richest life they have in their own country. And that future, in my judgment, can be very rich indeed, if we now see rightly what we have to hand.

The European Economic Community (the Common Market) has six schools for the children of its civil servants and of others who are lucky enough to get their children in. Some of the lucky ones are Italian workers who have left the south in search of employment.

Wherever a child's mother tongue may be, it takes a second language through five years of primary education. When the child reaches the beginning of his seven years of secondary education the second language becomes the language of instruction in history, geography and the history of art. If the child is German he learns his history in French and from a teacher who is not German. What have been called the child's "basic subjects"—though I should have put history among them—are taught in his mother tongue so that no difficulties need be encountered if parents should take their families back home.

A German teaching French history from textbooks written by Frenchmen might have an irritating task. The schools therefore have prepared their own textbooks and though objective history has been welcomed by the teachers and the children the nation-states that finance this experiment in "European" education have taken care not to let the "European" texts into their national schools.

This is true. It would be emphatically more related to the Canadian situation in which the people against whom we cherish our prejudices are our fellow countrymen and strangers—to us—within the country we all call our own.

I'm not concerned here about the political and legal devices Quebec may be intent upon using to enlarge the area of separatism among those who want all such devices to be related and the conscience of the country resolutely maintained.

Co-existence could become something infinitely more profitable to the nation if we thought in terms of what we can make of what we have, instead of how we can hold on to the lesser good.

With Soviet Help

Aswan Power in 1967

By IRENE BRESNAN
from Cairo

THE first turbines for the Aswan High Dam power station will be delivered from the Soviet Union this year, and power from the dam is expected to reach Cairo for the first time by 1967. Three turbines will be in operation by then, four in 1968 and five in 1969. If the present timetable is fulfilled, by 1968 from 3,000 to 5,000 million kilowatt hours of electricity will be generated, gradually increasing to 12,000 million by 1972.

Last week 30,000 Egyptian workers in Aswan celebrated the sixth anniversary of the blasting of the first charge of explosives in the construction of the dam. A Soviet delegation, led by Mr. P. Neporoshny, minister of power, and the 930 Soviet technicians working on the project were there. By the end of last year 64 per cent of the final structure had been completed.

The estimated cost of the dam is 240 million Egyptian pounds to which the Soviet Union has contributed nearly a half—in two loans. The overall bill will be about 500 million Egyptian pounds which includes agricultural expansion, conversion from basin to perennial irrigation, roads, railways and housing for technicians and other workers.

In return for this investment, land reclamation and conversion to perennial irrigation is expected to yield an income of about £110 million and the direct annual increase in the national income resulting from the construction of the High Dam, is estimated at £234 million.

So far 230,000 tons of material and equipment have been imported from the Soviet Union where 300 plants produce equipment needed for the dam. At University Entrance

I THINK that your editorial "Worth Nothing" should be carefully read and digested by those of us who are interested in university education for our children. I think that Saskatchewan should be congratulated for the new policy they have introduced of denying entry into the universities to those students with less than a 65 per cent high school average.

I am a great believer in free education for those who have the capacity, character and will for higher education and I do not believe any question of lack of funds should ever be allowed to stand in the way of a student with such qualifications. At the same time I am equally opposed to the trend of today which so many parents seem to follow that their children must obtain a university education in spite of the fact that they may not have the ability to absorb such an education. I am aware that unsuitable students are weeded out at Christmas but I cannot believe that this is good for those students as it must be hard to start out in life with the knowledge that one has failed.

In addition of course the taxpayer has to provide university buildings and staff for so many who should never be channelled into higher education.

I do not believe that we should follow the American pattern that all children must go to the university but I think we should carefully channel our youngsters into those types of education for which they are mentally equipped.

I think Saskatchewan has given us a very good and clear lead.

Safety at Night

HERE is an important suggestion for women who must be out alone at night.

Instead of carrying a hand bag which we so often read is the cause of a holdup, or assault, have a tailor put a deep pocket—5" x 6"—on the left inside of your coat, to hold your wallet, change purse, glasses, compact, handkerchiefs, etc.

Any woman equipped in this manner, and wearing a pair of reflective pedestrian arm bands which glow white in the headlights of a car, need have no fear of any kind, either of being held up, or of being run down by a car, when she crosses a street.

BE PREPARED

Federal Omission

Canadians and the world were shocked and deeply grieved by the death of the Indian prime minister, Lal Bahadur Shastri, so shortly after winding-up his peace conference with Pakistan's President Ayub Khan. As a graceful mark of sympathy and respect to the memory of the late great Indian statesman, the B.C. government lowered the B.C. and Canadian flags to half staff. We have a large Indian body of Canadian citizens in B.C. in contrast federal buildings did not lower their flags nor did the Canadian Pacific Railway.

Perhaps we could have a word of explanation and apology.

Guarding Freedom

Dr. Arnold Toynbee is a remarkable man and enjoys a wonderful and well-deserved reputation. But this average citizen is saddened after reading the nicely composed nonsense which recently appeared in the Colonist.

Surely Dr. Toynbee knows that the world has always had religious and ideological wars and will for some time to come. Is there really much difference between Moslem fighting Hindu or democrat fighting Communist? Of course it would be wonderful if these human fallings could be rectified by means of scholarly lectures and democratic handwringing, but somehow or other the bully never understands that approach. Or, understanding only too well, he uses it to his advantage.

The doctor says there is no freedom today in these parts of Viet Nam that the U.S. is holding under its control. Really, Doctor, do you expect immediate freedom and democracy as we know it? But I'm sure of this, the poor peasant with his bit of rice would far rather have the U.S. in control of his village than have a swarm of fanatical Communists controlling his life.

Certainly the U.S. has made mistakes. We recall the Aswan Dam loan, the mishandling of Batista and Castro and many other failings. But as far as I can see our neighbors to the south have a reasonably free system in which the majority has self-determination. And it has a system which has been able to provide billions of dollars and untold millions of tons of food to the rest of the world, including Dr. Toynbee's Britain.

He talks about ideology, well, I cling to our Western way of life and I will not snipe and rail at my powerful free neighbor.

As to Toynbee's contention that the U.S. is not fighting for freedom but for power and "as big a slice as possible," I just don't believe it. In fact, it is a cruel statement. Did 50,000 Americans die in Korea for colonialism?

Apparently we are to aspire to some sort of "beau role". To follow this to its absurd conclusion it seems we should bow to the tyrant so that history will show us in a less "ignominious" position; we may be dead or in slavery but all will be well—we will have gained "a beau role".

Toynbee states that France admitted doing wrong in Algeria and so gained in self-respect. The plain fact is that France was finally kicked out of Algeria, it was a matter of facing up to the inevitable. I spoke to many senior French officers who fought, or were going to fight, in Algeria and believe me, they had no feeling of doing wrong. And it was utterly impossible to convince even one of them that they were fighting for a lost cause, I'm afraid Toynbee's misinterpretation of the French position in Algeria is in line with his native re Ho Chi Minh.

It is indeed a terrible thing that young men have to fight and die in far corners of the earth. But history shows us very clearly that we must be forever vigilant, and, above all, firm in our determination to guard our precious freedom.

Seal Film

With regard to the article in your Colonist of Jan. 14 re Inhumane slaughter of seals, I can assure you it is absolutely true. The government will know the condition exists.

I have been in correspondence with Mr. David Gross, our Victoria MP who refers to it in his letters as barbarous treatment of defenceless animals.

The film could well have been one of Dr. Harry R. Little's, who a few years ago sailed with whaling and sealing vessels, took pictures and wrote articles on the brutality of both industries. He went to United Nations and all over the world with his findings. The picture could have been put on by humane societies in Europe in order to alert the people.

The reason for these atrocities is greed for money. Where love of money enters in compassion goes out. Seals come off easier while the animals are alive. They get more skins, more quickly, thus more money.

Since the Bible says we shall all reap what we sow, great will be the accountability of us all for these atrocities.

The Canadian Federation of Humane Societies, 65 Bayview Rd., Ottawa 3, Ontario, furnished its members with pamphlets on Inhumane sealing to send to all our members.

Dr. Alpert

Dr. Alpert's statements that the relaying of Christ's message through the church and the Bible was a "second-hand experience," and that by taking LSD everyone could have the "same experience Christ had" are typical of men who have never taken the time to study and ponder Christ's words.

He should read the gospel of John, Chapter 15, Verse 1—"Truly, truly I say to you, he who does not enter the sheepfold by the door, but climbs in by another way, that man is a thief and a robber." He should also ponder the meaning of the parable of the wise and foolish virgins.

If entering the kingdom of heaven (or hell) can be accomplished by simply swallowing chemicals, instead of by spiritual nourishment through words and symbols, and the discipline of prayer and meditation, many Christians will still sing the old hymn:

I ask no dream, no prophetic ecstasies,
No sudden rending of the veil of clay,
No angel-vision, no opening skies;
But take the dimness of my soul away.

Old Testament Modernized

By CECIL NORTHOTT
From London

Old and familiar words are to disappear from the Old Testament in the translation of the new English Bible now approaching completion. Seven times a year for the last 10 years, British Bible scholars have met to translate the Old Testament into "current everyday English" from Hebrew texts of the ninth and 10th centuries.

Under the direction of Professor G. R. Driver, of Oxford, the translating panels have decided to substitute "Lord" for "Jehovah," the Old Testament name for God; and to remove archaisms like "thou," "thee," "doth," "saith." But "thee" and "thou" will be kept where characters address God.

From the Genesis creation story, words like "chase" and "void" will go, and "the children of Israel" will always be referred to as "Israelites."

The aim of the new translation, which will not be ready for the printer until mid-1967, is to be readable, and to use English with which ordinary people are familiar. Unintelligible passages have been carefully scrutinized. For instance, Job says that he intends to wash himself with "snow water" but the translators have chosen to say "wash myself with soap."

Professor Driver says that while you cannot change "camel" into "motor cars" he hopes that the new translation will avoid the "sing-song" into which the old words can easily fall. Two time-honored words to go are "virgin" and "leprosy". In the true sense of the Bible, word "virgin" means a "marriageable" young woman and "leprosy" is "a skin disease."

As much of the Old Testament is in poetic form Professor Driver expects a storm of criticism when the final translation is published. The poetic translations are being kept secret so that the full impact of the new Bible can be assessed rather than individual portions of it.

The new Bible will have the Apocrypha, and with the New Testament will provide the English-speaking world with the first official Bible translation into English since 1611. The New Testament section published by the Oxford and Cambridge presses in 1961 has already had a world sale of more than 5,000,000 copies.

Fantastic Goings-On in West German Politics

Erhard Stabbed in the Back

By EDWIN ROTH, from Bonn
Special to the Colonist

Four months after winning the national election, West Germany's 68-year-old Chancellor Ludwig Erhard has more troubles than ever before.

His own ruling conservative party is torn by passionate internal feuds and bitter public infighting not only about personalities, but also about the basic principles of domestic and foreign policies.

A fierce political battle rages around the head of state, President Heinrich Lübke—who publicly opposes Chancellor Erhard.

At the same time, West Germany is suffering from the nightmare that Erhard's economic miracle may be melting away—and that economic disaster threatens.

With wages and salaries higher than ever, only very few unemployed, and more foreigners working in Germany than ever before, West Germans are today desperately worried about symptoms of recession and threatened unemployment.

In the September 1965 election, Erhard's conservative Christian Democratic Union (CDU), an alliance of Protestants and Roman Catholics, won 196 seats in parliament. Its permanent ally, the Bavarian Roman Catholic Christian Social Union (CSU) led by the dynamic, controversial former defence minister Franz Josef Strauss, won 49 seats. This gave Erhard a total 245 seats.

The Social Democrats, led by West Berlin's mayor Willy Brandt, won 202 seats. The small centre Free Democratic Party (FDP), led by Erich Mende, won 49 seats.

At Erhard had promised throughout his election campaign, he continued his previous coalition with the FDP, making FDP leader Erich Mende his vice-chancellor. This is known as the "Small Coalition". A coalition with Willy Brandt's Social Democrats would be known as the "Grand Coalition". Politically, personally, and psychologically, Erhard's biggest problem is his predecessor Konrad Adenauer, who has always disliked Erhard, has always considered him too weak for the chancellorship—and is still trying to remove Erhard from this office.

Since the death of John Foster Dulles, Adenauer has become increasingly suspicious of America, regards West Germany's reconciliation with France his greatest achievement—and believes West Germany should support de Gaulle against Washington.

In this, Adenauer is supported by the Bavarian CSU leader Franz Josef Strauss. But Erhard has always believed that if de Gaulle compels any West German choice between Washington or Paris, West Germany must support Washington. Foreign Minister Gerhard Schröder, who is pro-American, is bitterly opposed by Adenauer.

One of Erhard's most influential opponents inside his CDU is 59-year-old Dr. Eugen Gerstenmayer, the Bonn parliament's Speaker. Formerly a Protestant cleric, he is one of very few survivors of the plot to kill Hitler on July 20, 1944.

Gerstenmayer, who loves to deal with foreign affairs, stands with Adenauer against Erhard, supporting Adenauer's pro-French "Gaullist" policy. He hopes to replace Schröder as foreign minister—and perhaps even to replace Erhard as chancellor.

West Germany's head of state is 71-year-old Heinrich Lübke, who was agriculture minister in the Adenauer administration. He is a Roman Catholic, and a CDU founder member.

Red Boosters U.S. Targets?

NEW YORK (AP)—The American Broadcasting Co. reported here that the United States has been intercepting Soviet military and space test boosters over the Pacific Ocean as part of an anti-missile practice program. Jules Bergman, ABC science editor, said the United States has used the Russian boosters as targets for two years and the Soviet Union knows it. The Russians have not openly protested, he said. In Washington, an army spokesman said the report is "totally false."

Under the West German constitution, the president should be above and outside party politics.

BACKGROUND

But President Lübke has publicly joined Adenauer's fight against Erhard and Schröder. Ever since the election, Adenauer has publicly campaigned for a "Grand Coalition" of his CDU with Willy Brandt's Social Democrats. He insists that only a "Grand Coalition" could deal with the coming serious problems which Germany must face.

Adenauer has never forgotten or forgiven that he was forced from the chancellorship by Erhard, Schröder, and other CDU leaders because of his age (he was then 88).

In any "Grand Coalition" with the Social Democrats, Erhard would be replaced as chancellor by another CDU politician, and probably Schröder would also lose his present job. Incidentally, Adenauer still hopes that the new chancellor in a "Grand Coalition" with the Social Democrats might be—Konrad Adenauer!

Recently President Lübke gave a press interview advocating a "Grand Coalition" with the Social Democrats. What followed was a public drama unique in post-war European politics.

At President Lübke's formal reception for government and diplomatic corps, attended by diplomats and newsmen from all over the world, Erhard inserted into his formal speech the icy, furious words:

"I stand here as Chancellor of the Small Coalition, which was clearly chosen by the electorate. I cannot allow the impression that this coalition has already broken down, and should be replaced."

Angry, Lübke retorted: "You must treat the opposition in such a way that outstanding problems can be solved!"

Vice-Chancellor Erich Mende publicly attacked Lübke. He accused the president of behaving unethically, unconstitutionally, and breaching his presidential duty.

Konrad Adenauer's recent 90th birthday, when he could prove his miraculous vitality and full mental vigor for many hours and significant.

before the television cameras, has given him a new lease of political life.

Millions of Germans who love a father figure could see and hear beyond any doubt that "Der Alte" has all the health, energy, and mental powers of a man 20 or even 30 years younger.

His personal prestige is tremendous. His attacks against Erhard, Schröder, and Washington are not regarded as symptoms of senility by the millions of Germans who saw him campaigning in August and September, and watched him on television during his strenuous birthday celebrations.

On Jan. 25, Adenauer is flying to Paris for a meeting with de Gaulle. Adenauer has announced that de Gaulle and he will discuss a European atomic force.

During the coming months, all this bitter infighting against the background of threatened economic crisis will, I predict, become increasingly dramatic and significant.

Winds of Change

China, Russia Woo Mongolia

By A. C. MILLER, from Hong Kong

For most people Mongolia is still remembered as that remote Asian land from whence came Genghis Khan and where nomads wander aimlessly through the barren Gobi Desert tending their herds of horses, camels and sheep.

The view is understandable. Few countries are as isolated or forgotten as Mongolia. Wedged between Communist giants Russia, and China, Mongolia is anything but easily accessible. Then, too, since the collapse of the Mongolian Empire nearly 300 years ago the country has been under almost constant foreign domination. Its very geographical location has in the past been its worst liability.

Today, however, winds of change are blowing across the Gobi. And ironically, Mongolia's previous geographical liability has become its greatest asset. The recent visit of a high-level Russian delegation headed by Soviet Party boss Leonid Brezhnev explains why.

With the Sino-Soviet quarrel growing increasingly hostile and protracted, Mongolia has taken on more importance as a buffer zone. Moscow and Peking are vying both economically and politically for Mongolian favor. And, of course, Mongolia is profiting.

Since the Communist revolution in 1921 when Outer Mongolia became an officially the Mongolian People's Republic, the country has been almost totally oriented toward Moscow. Its present leaders are as pro-Soviet as possible, and likely to remain so.

Although the Communists have failed in their attempt to exert greater influence on the Mongols, they most likely will avoid drastic actions. From Peking's point of view it is preferable by far to have Mongolians rather than Russians on the border of its important Inner Mongolian areas.

What results in such a situation is that the Chinese prefer to leave well enough alone while the Russians are generous in the extreme in hopes of retaining Mongolian favor.

Brezhnev's visit, for the most part, was viewed here as an attempt by the Russians to demonstrate their warm friendship and high regard for the Mongolians. By sending the top party man, as well as Foreign Minister Andrei Gromyko and Defence Minister Rodion Malinovsky, the Russians were treating the Mongolians as equals.

This naturally set well with the Mongolians, as did the $665,000,000 in aid provided by the Soviet Union for the country's fourth five-year plan that started this year.

With a population of only 1,100,000 and an average per capita income of about $100 a month, the Soviet aid represents one month's salary for every man, woman and child for each of the next five years. This would be significant under any circumstances. Yet even without the new Soviet aid the Mongolians are faring better than ever.

There is free education and medical care for all; food is plentiful and visitors report that the average Mongol is better dressed than the average Russian.

Globalism is the thinking of those who have not learned the facts of life.—Walter Lippmann.

It sounds very precise to say that if one of the 16 direct ancestors of a person—that is, a great-great-grandparent—belongs to a particular race, then he is one-sixteenth a member of that race. But genetically a man cannot be described as if he were a cocktail or an omelette.—Robert Gardiner, in a BBC talk.

Medical Drama Alerts Frigate

Stettler's A-Go-Go Group Needs New Guitarist

HMCS Stettler is among vessels of the Pacific, Atlantic and United States fleets taking part in combined exercises in the western waters. Her commanding officer needs back the following story.

By Lt. Cmdr. T. T. IRVINE

ABOARD HMCS STETTLER AT SEA — SCENE — A frigate at sea, 200 miles from the nearest port — man with perforated appendix — doctor scrubbing up for emergency operation — sick bay being prepared — medical assistant checking man's files for blood group — patient groaning on a bunk — temperature in the 90's — captain figuring out steadiest course to steer for operation. That's the way it would happen in a B movie!

It could have happened this way in Stettler on Friday, Jan. 14, when surgeon Lt. Michael Tye of 2561 Craigowan Road diagnosed that AB Joseph Hall of 759 Queen Street did have a very ripe appendix. A frigate's sick bay, although adequate, can in no way compare to a shore hospital as regards facilities, and in cases requiring surgery any doctor would prefer to have his patient in a hospital.

The days of worried naval doctors operating with a pen-knife and a bottle of whiskey as the anesthetic for both doctor and patient are long since gone.

Off Mexico

I was on the bridge, and the temperature was in the 90s, and Stettler was 200 miles from the nearest port on the Mexican coast when Surgeon Lt. Tye appeared unexpectedly. Medical officers are rarely seen around bridges on ships unless there is something wrong. Within 10 minutes a decision had been made by Capt. W. M. Kidd, senior officer of the Esquimaux, based ships now bound for the Caribbean and points south, as to what was to be done about AB Hall, the sailing hand guitarist of the Stettler A-Go-Go group. With in another 10 minutes HMCS St. Croix (Cmdr John Herbstberg of 759 Richmond, in command) arrived alongside Stettler and a "high line" was passed between the two ships.

On a High Line

AB Hall was assisted up the ladder from our sick bay, lashed on to the traveller on the high line (he now looked even sicker than he was!) and whisked at Mexico City. We in Stettler were in the happy position of being able to thank St. Croix for the high-speed ambulance service by refuelling her from Stettler.

A frigate is not normally equipped to act as an oil tanker, but by improvising it can be done, and in three hours 600 barrels of much-needed fuel oil were pumped across to St. Croix's tanks with both ships steaming 100 feet apart. As St. Croix came alongside to pass hoses, she was greeted by a large sign on Stettler's bridge: "Irvine Oil Co., Alberta Premium — Closed on Sundays."

Guitarist Warms Up

The depleted A-Go-Go group, now consisting of OS Raymond Gathercole (electric guitar) and AB Graham Shaw (drums) are attempting to warm up AB Garret Grosjean of 541 Toronto Street, as a replacement. Tuesday the group of ships arrived at Panama for an overnight stop before proceeding through the canal and out to the Caribbean to join up with units of Canada's Halifax-based

Innkeeper 'Ma Miller' Dies at 90

One of the Victoria area's best-known innkeepers and most colorful personalities, Mrs. Mary Ann Smith, died Wednesday at the age of 90.

Mrs. Smith was better known to Victorians as Ma Miller, once owner of the Goldstream and Colwood Inns. The Goldstream Inn is still widely-known as "Ma Miller's."

She was given the affectionate nickname because "she was awfully good to a lot of people in the early days," said her nephew, Earl Cairns. Mrs. Smith rebuilt the Gold-stream Inn after it burned down in the late 1920s, and owned it until 1946.

Miller was the name of her first husband, who died in a car accident on the Malahat. The name Ma Miller stayed with her. In recent years she lived at the Kiwanis Village, 3035 Cook. She is survived by her husband, Asa, and a sister, Mrs. Daisy Cairns of Victoria.

Second Man Convicted in Party Raid

The second of a group of young men who invaded a house party on Boxing Day was found guilty in central court Thursday of charges arising from the incident.

Police See Youth Shoot Self

BURNABY (CP)—A 17-year-old youth shot and killed himself early Thursday on a downtown street as two RCMP constables tried to persuade him to put down a rifle and return home.

Dead is David Parker, who police said left home after a family argument.

Parker threatened to shoot himself rather than return home when two RCMP constables pulled their car along side him as he walked on a Burnaby street.

When one of the constables left the car, the youth shot himself in the head. He died later in hospital.

Allen H. Robinson, 22, formerly of 2843 Blackwood and now living in Vancouver, was found guilty of causing wilful damage. He earlier pleaded guilty to assault. He was remanded for pre-sentence report and sentence.

Kent Henley, 1114 Marchant, earlier was sentenced to three months for causing a disturbance and mischief on the same occasion.

HOME DAMAGED

Damage exceeding $50 was caused to the home of Joseph Rivard, 200 West Haddock, and Mr. Rivard was assaulted.

Defence counsel contended Robinson was not guilty of wilful damage because he was busy assaulting Mr. Rivard at the time the damage was done.

Robinson told court he stepped in the house at one point only to stop a fight in progress just inside the door.

IN THE GROUP

However, Magistrate William Oulter ruled he was "a party to the offence."

"I am satisfied his actions with the group caused damage," Mr. Oulter said. "Whether this accused actually did commit damage is immaterial because he was one of a group that did do mischief in that house.

"He was a principal."

Fred Washington McCowan, 1980 Washington, was sentenced to 21 days for being in control of a car while impaired.

SLUMPED IN CAR

Police said they found McCowan slumped in the front seat of his car on Dallas Road Christmas Eve with the motor running.

Defence counsel said the festive season caused McCowan to "drop his guard."

NO EXCUSE

"I don't think the festive season can ever be advanced as an excuse," Magistrate Oulter said.

McCowan was sentenced after court was told he had a previous conviction.

COME WITH YOUR CHILDREN

Sar Singh of Port Alberni was found guilty of impaired driving and was remanded for sentence when his counsel refused to acknowledge a previous conviction.

The Crown was given until Jan. 28 to prove the conviction.

OPEN BOTTLE

Police said a topless whisky bottle with about four ounces of rye in it was found lying on the seat beside Sar Singh when he was stopped Jan. 9 at Douglas and Cloverdale.

Court was told he was driving south on Douglas at about 35 miles an hour, straddling the centre line and moving from side to side.

PARTY

Robert Halls, described as Sar Singh's girlfriend, said he had attended a party at her home from about 3:30 to 7 a.m. and had left sober, taking the bottle with him.

Sar Singh testified he had driven part way up the Malahat, turned back, changed a flat tire and returned to Victoria. He said he hadn't had any sleep and appeared to stagger because of a back ailment.

POLICE TESTIFY

Four Saanich policemen testified that their opinion was that he was impaired.

William Maxwell Lundy, 3179 Ayton, was fined $50 when he was found guilty of possession of stolen goods valued at more than $50.

Police said Lundy was in possession of an outboard motor stolen in the Shawnigan Lake area by a juvenile.

Charlie Peterson was sentenced to six months and Terence Ryan to three months after earlier pleading guilty to theft of coins from a pay telephone.

Bennett Hints Boost In Education Grants

Premier Bennett hinted Thursday that a substantial increase can be expected in federal government grants for education.

He said as he entered a cabinet meeting that he had received word about the grants from Prime Minister Pearson, and that "it looks pretty good." But the premier would not elaborate.

Prime Minister Pearson has said he will announce the increases as soon as all provincial governments have been informed about them.

Meteor's rich look of luxury is one big reason

Meteor's elegant comfort is another reason

One of the first things people notice in a new Meteor is the beautiful interior luxury. Once you've seen Meteor's comfortable, deep, foam-padded seats, there's no stopping you from sitting in them and surrounding yourself in Meteor elegance. Fabrics are rich, lavish. Soft, supple crinkle grain vinyl has the look and feel of fine leather. A number of people joined the Meteor Admiration Society the moment they discovered and experienced all this elegance and prestige in a popular price car.

Meteor's beautiful style is another reason

Your eyes just naturally snap to attention at the first sight of a new Meteor. You simply cannot resist Meteor's distinctive beauty... clean, crisp, sculptured lines and tasteful use of trim accents. Meteor's sweeping roofline and gently tapered rear deck draw admiring looks wherever they're seen. An optional vinyl roof adds town car fashion to the ultra-glamorous look of Meteor 2 and 4-door hardtops. In fact, many people join the Meteor Admiration Society for Meteor's good looks alone.

Meteor's superb handling is another reason

You'll love the way your Meteor handles... so easy to park, so easy to maneuver. And Meteor's ride is a delight, too. Independent, all-coil suspension smooths out the roughest roads... lets each wheel step individually over bumps without disturbing Meteor's level ride. A torque-box, tuned frame absorbs vibration and shock and deadens noise as you ride in total comfort in the silent world of Meteor. It's not surprising that many people join the Meteor Admiration Society just for the ride.

with Alec Merriman

We got in last weekend on the tremendous winter spring, jackspring and coho grise fishing now being experienced in lower Island waters. On Saturday we fished with Finlayson Arm guide Gordy Lamont and brought back 14 fish for four people. On Sunday we fished with Oak Bay guide Howard Pepper and Bob McMillan and landed four springs better than 10 pounds each.

Saturday's trip was a repeat of a similar trip about the same time last year, only this time the fishing was even better. We left Hall's Boat House about 9:30 a.m. and before we reached Chesterfield Rock we had our first coho grise in the boat, caught on eight ounces and a Krippled K spoon with a red flash painted on it. We used no flasher on the light lines.

We headed up the Arm and before we got out of the narrows had a jackspring on the heavy line, using Super Strip-Teaser, 150 feet of line and planer.

Then the fish started hitting regularly. All four lines took fish with Krippled K spoons—one with the red flash and the other with fluorescent green blazes painted across—and Super Strip-Teasers, working best. As well as the planer we had one line out with 70 feet of wire line, one pound of weight, dodger and Krippled K spoon.

The other lines were nylon with four ounces of weight on one and eight ounces on the other, with about 100 to 150 feet of line.

Hottest spot we found was along the shore between the Deep Hole and the Stone House and then a circle around in the middle of Squally Reach almost to the White Lady and across to the Deep Hole.

We had planned to fish bucktail flies for blues, but the water was so muddy from the heavy runoff from Goldstream and Rough Creek that bucktailing was out of the question. Art Hall tells us the water has now cleared and bucktailing is picking up quite well.

The Deep Hole is straight up Finlayson Arm from Hall's Boat House, as far as you can go without turning, and Lamont tells us you can fish it almost right smack against the wall as deep as 400 feet and a planer, but at this time of year he doesn't go deeper than 150 feet.

Lamont like to use the Super Strip-Teasers and in contrast to many anglers he like to make them work with a slow wide roll. At this time of year small spoons also work well.

By 12:30 the fishing dropped right off, but we ended with a bang just before we headed for home, with a 10-pounder on 150 feet and planer and Super Strip-Teaser between Chesterfield and Goldstream Island, to wind up with one spring, four jacksprings and nine good-sized coho grise.

Fishing was hot all over last weekend.

Fishing with Claude Creed, Alisa Thompson of Seattle captured herself a bronze VSIAA button in Tod Inlet with a 20-pound winter spring. Also in the party were her husband Ron, and brother, Ray Butt, and they ended up with another 10-pound spring and a smaller jack. Roy Smith and Vern Pailiser had two big days for springs up to 17 pounds in Tod Inlet to Willis Point waters.

Owen Lehr found some terrific fishing in Satellite Channel. Off Oak Bay a run of blues arrived in the Cattle Point-Strongfield Island waters on Sunday. The big springs were right off the Marina and golf links waterfront.

Off Victoria it took Ron Simmons and Jimmy Worawick just three-quarters of an hour to leave West Bay Marina, travel to Victoria waterfront and return with an 11-pounder. There is a big run of grise off Victoria waterfront . . . and watch that 12-inch size limit.

Now is the time to fish those small streams like Colquitz and Deadman's River, just off the Trans-Canada Highway.

Jack Coy limited in those creeks Saturday, using worms to catch 11 cutthroats and one grise, ranging up to three pounds.

Bait fishermen have been getting trout at the southern end of Shawanigan.

This weekend should be the steelheader's dream. At mid-week all Island rivers were reported approaching best fishing levels and clearing nicely.

Some of the venturesome anglers hit steelhead last weekend. Nine were reported from eddy pools in the lower reaches of the full Cowichan. Lew Elbert took a nice one just above his Rustic Motel at Campbell River.

The Salmon River and the San Juan Rivers are good bets this weekend. On the Big Qualicum the fence count of steelies is 40 per cent higher than last year at same time.

The Big Qualicum steelies are also reported bigger than last year at this time.

High water has given steelies an excellent opportunity to shoot right up the rivers. Almost any favorite spot in any Vancouver Island river should be a good bet this weekend, and if conditions keep on as they have been, no heavy rains, this could be the biggest steelheading weekend of the year.

This Is Pebble Beach

Jack Nicklaus yesterday encountered some of the many troubles golfers can get into at Pebble Beach's Cypress Point layout when he hit his drive on beach from 16th tee in first round of Bing Crosby tournament. He made fine recovery to within 15 feet of pin but took two putts for a bogie four. —(AP)

Geiberger Wields Hot Putter

PEBBLE BEACH, Calif. (AP)—Slim Al Geiberger, 28, dropped a 25-foot putt and two more from 15 feet Thursday while fashioning a three-under-par 68 and the first-round lead in Bing Crosby's $104,500 golf tournament.

Geiberger, eighth among the pro money winners in 1965, played the Monterey Peninsula Country Club, one of three in use in this event.

FOUR-WAY TIE

He held a one-stroke lead over Californians Ken Towne of San Jose, Paul Bonderson of Palm Springs, and Lee Raymond of Redwood City, along with Oklahoma City's Ernie Vossler.

Most of the big-name golfers and celebrity amateurs played at Cypress Point, a tougher course which drew the great majority of the opening-day record throng of 25,000.

George Knudson of Toronto finished with a 38-35-74.

PALMER CLOSE

Arnold Palmer, who won the recent Los Angeles Open, and 1961 Crosby champion Tony Lema stamped themselves top contenders with two-under-par 70s at the Cypress Point course.

The pros are aiming at two top prizes—the $13,000 for the low individual pro at the end of Sunday's final round and $10,000 awarded the pro on the leading pro-amateur tour.

Billy Casper, twice winner of this tournament and the recent San Diego open, had a 71 at Cypress.

NICKLAUS AT 73

Jack Nicklaus, last year's leading money winner, made his 1966 debut with 73, going over par on two of the final three holes.

In the 70 group with Palmer and Lema were Chris Blocker, Rex Baxter and Don Macsenale. The latter played Cypress Point and the other two at Monterey.

Many scores soared. Doug Ford, the 1962 champion, shot a 78 at Pebble Beach, the toughest of the three which also will be the scene of the final round. Defending champion Bruce Crampton had a 72 at Monterey.

Stan Leonard of Vancouver had to settle for 39-38-77. His Pro-Am score in combination with Jack Sim was 33-34-67.

Recording Forest Blazes on Film

She Braves the Flames

By JACK FRY

Someone has to make films of the pictures you see of raging forest fires and quite likely that person will be the woman who is chief photographer for the B.C. Forest Service.

She is Barbara Davies, a former London girl who learned her basic photographic technique while serving as a corporal in the Women's Auxiliary Air Force.

FOR NEW FILM

When this year's forest fire season rolls around Barbara will no doubt be up in a helicopter with a movie camera shooting color pictures of some of the fires for use in a new film being prepared by the forest service.

Wearing dungarees and a field jacket and lugging her equipment with her she will also shoot pictures on the ground of the men and machines fighting to contain the blaze at the fire line.

"A photographer is not popular with the men in the line because they don't like having someone with a camera interrupt the serious business of fighting fires," she says.

But this is part of her job and she simply brushes aside the complaints as she does the danger which she approaches on field assignments.

There is a big demand from various Canadian and American news media for photographic coverage of some of the fires and the forest service public information and education division usually will do anything within reason to help them out.

On Oil Talks

Province Won't Budge

Attorney-General Robert Bonner said Thursday that B.C. had quietly bowed out of a Supreme Court showdown with the federal government on the question of offshore oil rights.

He said the government informed Ottawa last fall that B.C. would not go into the court reference unless the test case was widened to include eastern provinces as well.

The attorney-general said that too many times in the past B.C. had been placed at a disadvantage by a policy of "divide and prevail."

"Speaking on behalf of the B.C. government, I am not willing to accede to a reference which singles this province out on a question that affects the rest of the country," he said. "I am reluctant to see this matter proceed unless or until the terms of reference embracing the eastern provinces are settled."

Mrs. Elphick Funeral Saturday

Funeral services will be held at 1 p.m. Saturday at Sands Chapel for Mrs. Christina Cranston Elphick, 58, of 1804 Bay who died Wednesday. She was the mother of Esquimalt Coun. Roy Elphick.

Born in Glasgow, Scotland, she lived 21 years in Victoria. She also is survived by her husband, Robert; sons Robert, in England, Allan, of Victoria, and Don, of Bagotville, Que.; her sister, Mrs. Jean King, of Victoria; eight grandchildren, and nieces and nephews.

Time and Life magazines used this government service in 1961 when a fire near Prince George reached such huge proportions that some people claimed the smoke could be seen as far east as Chicago.

OTHER SERVICES

But many other services are also provided by the forest service's information office located in Room 210 on the second floor of a government building at 557 Superior Street.

It is estimated more than 200,000 people saw movies last year through the 500 loans which were made from the forestry film library.

FILMS HANDY

Some 160 films from this library are available for showings at schools, service clubs and private parties.

Many illustrated booklets compiled by forest service personnel and published at the Queen's Printer are given away across the counter to people who come in seeking information.

And there are some 20,000 reference books in a specialized forest service library which are lent free for one-month periods. These books are often used by university students.

The photographic laboratory of which Barbara Davies is in charge also prints black and white still pictures which are requested by newspapers, magazines and television stations.

Photographer's Ability Gets Gallery Showing

Seeing a single effective photograph, it's impossible to tell whether the maker was skilled or just lucky.

With 27 to study, a fair idea of the photographer's work can be gained.

Such a show is currently at the Art Gallery of Greater Victoria, the pictures of Michael Long.

Mr. Long displays a discerning eye and bold ideas, coupled with somewhat uneven technique.

EXPLORING MEDIUM

He seems to be exploring his medium. He reacts to textures and form like a bird dog, and some of the results are striking. Probably the finest piece shown is Black Chain, a simple, clean photograph of chain against weathered wood.

Another simple and strong composition is Lyric, water, one rock, one loop of kelp.

GAP EMPHASIZED

The portraits on display emphasize the gap between concept and execution. One, of Pat Martin Bates partly concealed behind a brick wall, would stand up in the finest company. Another, a close-up of the same subject, is probably the low point of the exhibition—unflatteringly distorted—and rather dull in quality.

Mr. Long is back in form with another portrait, Carol, a small, dramatic print that rivets the eye on the face and hands.

TRYING TOO HARD

Some others show signs of trying too hard for impact, as in a portrait, Eric, with its large face looking out one side of the picture in the foreground, and a painted portrait looking out the other side in the background. Another print off this negative might be worth the effort.

Many of this young Victoria photographer's pictures would wear well, hung on the wall, which is a tough test for a photograph.

Whether they carry out the best statement of their essential idea, a much tougher test, is not so easily answered.

There is no doubt, however, that they are worth exhibition. It is gratifying to see the Art Gallery showing more of such a widely-practised craft. — J.T.J.

Book Nearly Closed on Oil Strike

One hundred and twenty nine days later, the book is as good as closed on the B.C. oil workers' issue.

Principals of the final chapter, the British American Oil Company and 60 marketing division employees, members of the Oil, Chemical and Atomic Workers Union have agreed to a joint union-management committee that will study the controversial seniority question.

The employees accepted the terms at a meeting in Vancouver Thursday night, thus ending a four-month strike that at one time threatened to envelop industry throughout the province. The two-day general strike called by the B.C. Federation of Labor for Nov. 24 in support of striking oil workers at B.A. and Imperial Oil plants in the province was shelved when the government stepped in with proposals.

The settlement, which embraced seven oil companies operating in B.C., was called a major victory for labor in automation.

'STALLING'
But the B.A. marketing division employees stayed struck because of what they regarded as "stalling" by the management on the question of seniority lists.

The joint committee now agreed upon will make proposals which if accepted by the two sides will automatically become part of the contract agreement.

HARDSHIP
With the decision, eight Victoria B.A. workers said goodbye to picketing days. Five employees have been on strike in Nanaimo, but in both places supervisory personnel have kept things operating.

Fred Ikona, Victoria picket captain, said some of the local strikers "were pushed fairly close" to hardship on the $35-a-week strike pay and one or two had taken part-time jobs, but most stuck to the picket lines.

He thought the dispute, which gave workers a 35 cents an hour besides precious job security guarantees, had been resolved in "a very good settlement".

The men are expected to return to work Monday.

Apart from the threatened general strike, the local scene during the dispute was not without incident. RCMP were called in when an empty B.A. tanker making a return run was fired on near Duncan.

BA area manager Howard Rouch disclosed last night police suspected who the sniper was but had not been able to produce sufficient evidence to warrant an arrest. He added, however, no suspicion had ever fallen on the striking men.

Last night also saw the end written to the lengthy strike against the B.A. Oil Company refinery at Moose Jaw, where 130 workers have been out since Sept. 19.

The agreement is couched in similar terms to the B.C. settlement, the company agreeing to a 35 cents an hour across-the-board increase as a six months notice to layoffs through automation, retraining for displaced workers and severance pay on the basis of one week's pay for every year of service.

Bonner Lauds Ottawa Move

Immigration Sets Net To Bar Mafia's Entry

Attorney-General Bonner predicted Thursday that new special agents of the immigration department will keep criminals out of Canada and make it easier to put close tabs on suspected criminals who enter the country legally.

Bonner was commenting on announcement in Ottawa Wednesday that 16 special agents will be posted in four cities to halt what was described as a procession of top Mafia men into Canada.

Agents will be sent to Vancouver, but Mr. Bonner said he does not know how many or when.

He said the move is an extension of efforts by the immigration department to keep out undesirable people.

He said it was discussed at the recent federal-provincial crime conference in Ottawa.

Mr. Bonner said the agents in Vancouver will work closely with RCMP and local police.

"There is no question that a move of this kind will make screening more effective," he said.

"I would think that legally some undesirable people may be impossible to keep out—you've got to have firm grounds—but it will be possible to ensure better surveillance of those that do cross the border."

Mr. Bonner said the move will tighten liaison between Ottawa police and the U.S. in combating criminal activities.

UBC President Wants Provincial Grants Up

The federal government has increased grants to universities, and now the provincial government should follow suit. University of British Columbia president John B. Macdonald said Thursday.

Dr. Macdonald described the increase in per capita federal grants from $2 to $5 as a "useful temporary measure."

He commented the grant hike still falls short of the Bladen Commission's recommendation of a $6 per capita grant for 1966-67.

"It is crucially important, as indicated by the prime minister, that the provinces as well as the federal government recognize the pressing needs of the universities for annual increases in financial support," Dr. Macdonald said.

"In the light of Premier Bennett's statement that education is among the highest priorities of his government, we should be able to anticipate a significant increase in provincial support to complement the assistance being provided by the federal government."

Young African Man Won't Stop Growing

LOURENÇO MARQUES, Mozambique—In the little village of Manjacaze, about 180 miles north of here, lives a young African who may be the tallest man in the world—and he is still growing.

Student Council Splits On Fiery Fee Issue

By GUY STANLEY

University of Victoria students council has advised students withholding $56 of second-term fees to pay in full, including the $10 late fine, by Jan. 21.

But in doing so they split publicly on the issue.

At a noon-hour rally of more than 300 students Thursday, council member Gordon Pollard, fourth-year arts, said he would continue to withhold until he had a firm guarantee from the administration that there would be no fee raise next year.

WILL HOLD BACK

Other council members said they would continue to hold back until Thursday unless they were threatened with expulsion.

"We pledged to withhold until next year's fee structure is known," Mr. Pollard said.

"While I don't question the sincerity of the other council members, I feel that to back down again to Jan. 21 is a complete sellout."

DEADLINE TODAY

Today is the deadline set by the administration for payment before names of students withholding are turned over to the registrar.

Until Thursday, the student council had asked the students not to pay until next Thursday when the provincial legislature opens.

Almost 700 students were withholding the $56 to protest rising tuition costs. They said these presented a barrier to higher education.

REASONS FOR CHANGE

Ignorance of the contents of the registrar's letter which all students withholding will receive Monday, and legal opinion received from the Alma Mater Society's lawyer, were the reasons for the change, said council president Paul Williamson.

"We are no longer sure we can continue to hold out without having our registration cancelled."

FOCUS ON ATTENTION

Aim of withholding until Thursday was to focus attention on the provincial government, with the hope of influencing it to meet the grant requests of the universities.

"The only reason we are paying is a matter of conjecture. Dean Jeffels (the registrar) raises an eyebrow and we cave in," Mr. Pollard said.

UP TO INDIVIDUAL

"It's okay for me to place my head in the noose, but we don't feel as a responsibly elected student council that we can make that decision for you personally," Mr. Williamson told students.

"In making this decision, we had to weigh the consequences against cause."

"What we have done here is not an admission of any kind of failure. In no single year has the issue of aid to education been so systematically and successfully hammered into the press," he said.

COUNCIL WILL HELP

As for the late fee, Mr. Williamson said:

"No student who honestly can't pay will have his registration cancelled, and council will do all it can to honor its moral commitment to reimburse the $10 to students who withheld."

He denied that student protests of council's legal power to pay withholders' late fees had influenced his decision.

By withholding past Jan. 7, students ran up a $10 late fine, payable with fees. Council earlier promised to pay the late fine, but is prevented by Section 6 of the B.C. Societies Act.

PROHIBITS DISTRIBUTION

This section prohibits the AMS as a corporation from distributing its holdings to any of its members.

Council will manoeuvre around this by setting up an ad hoc committee. Because it will not be a part of the AMS, it can raise money to reimburse students, Mr. Williamson said.

who must agree to learn alongside the child, so that the basic rules for training at home can be reinforced.

Tiny violins, about one-third conventional size, have been imported from Japan for the project and will be rented at a nominal cost to the youngsters.

If the concept is remarkable, the results are astounding.

At first the going is slow, as pupils master the simple tune, Twinkle, Twinkle Little Star.

This slow beginning tends to irritate many parents, who seem to expect a new selection each lesson and measure progress by quantity rather than quality.

The deep-seated spirit of competition and desire of parents to get ahead is probably the toughest obstacle the method has to overcome.

The feeling is common, for Mr. Suzuki has developed a standard counter to the suggestion. He asks, "And where are you hurrying?"

If anyone doubts the method, it's worth remembering that eight-year-olds are able to play Bach's Concerto in A Minor and those old men of 10 are playing Mozart's violin concerto in A Major.

These are not just the top students, but all those who have carried out their training properly.

For all this early period the pupils do not see a sheet of music. They learn purely by ear. Some teachers introduce scores at about age nine.

Trend Set?

Mrs. DeLong could be setting a trend here that will provide the badly needed pool of string talent that could supplement our symphony.

It's a bit of a grind at first for parents, but after a lesson or two, pride takes over.

As one mother put it, "My four-year-old can't blow his nose properly yet, but he CAN play the Twinkle, Twinkle Variations."

There has been some slight opposition from the entrenched musical establishment, but not much. Chief danger to the system are those standard childhood problems—measles, mumps, chickenpox and colds.

If you hear the complaint, "Johnny can't play the Beethoven this week. He has spots," then Mrs. DeLong is going strong.

By Ear

Already in our house we are getting tired of one of our long-loved violin sonatas as the ear training starts, but probably by next week we will hear it in a new dimension—and probably in the not too distant future hear it played live in the same room. It will have been worth all the effort.

Province May Save $100,000

Toll-Free Phones Installed

By JACK FRY

In an effort to trim an annual telephone bill which is passing the $1,250,000 mark, the provincial government this week opened a new toll-free long-distance service.

Government offices here can now call—through the switchboard at the Legislative Building—numbers in Nanaimo, Kamloops, Kelowna, Nelson and Prince George, as well as Greater Vancouver, which has had a similar service since 1962.

The service is toll-free to any of the seven centres from any of the others in the group.

The B.C. Telephone service, which used to provide 13 toll-free lines to Greater Vancouver, now includes 39 lines, 24 of them in the Vancouver area.

Public Works Minister W.

N. Chant said Thursday that with new buildings going up and new offices being opened, he could see no way of reducing the spiralling telephone costs unless the cost of the service itself went down.

The provincial government's telephone bill was $1,072,000 for the fiscal year 1964-65. Mr. Chant said the $1,250,000 included in the estimates for the current fiscal year which ends March 31, "will not cover the cost of telephone service."

The minister said he would have to draw some money from the maintenance fund to make up the difference between the $1,250,000 and the actual cost of the service.

Statistics were not available on the cost of the new service, which took three months to install. But Mr. Chant said it would be cheaper to lease the 39 lines on a monthly basis than to pay the long-distance tolls which were formerly charged to these places.

The public works minister said he thought the new service would save the government at least $100,000 a year, in addition to providing a fast and efficient communications system.

The special inter-city numbers will not be listed in telephone directories, and only authorized personnel will have access to the system.

Battle Lines Drawn on Elk Lake Water

City Girds for Showdown

By A. H. MURPHY
City Hall Reporter

Victoria is ready for a showdown battle on the question of selling water from Elk Lake to Central Saanich, city council indicated Thursday.

A move by the northern municipality to have rights to the city-owned lake vested in the Crown will be vigorously opposed by the city.

City Solicitor T. P. O'Grady was instructed by city council Thursday to draw up objections to the Central Saanich application.

Backed by Brentwood, Deep Cove, Sidney and representatives of the federal experimental farm in Central Saanich and the provincial ferry base at Swartz Bay, Central Saanich at a recent meeting indignantly rejected a city proposal that it pay five cents a 1,000 gallons for Elk Lake water.

The peninsula water users want renewal of a contract, which expired in 1961, which sold the water for 1½ cents a 1,000 gallons.

Line Investment

Since 1961 no charge has been made for the water.

"Five cents a thousand gallons is a very fair price for Elk Lake water, particularly in the light of the fact that our own Victoria taxpayers are paying 12½ cents a 1,000 gallons," said Ald. Geoffrey Edgewood Thursday.

"Our taxpayers have an investment of $6,000,000 in water lines and they are still paying on this. It is only fair that these peninsula people pay for their own water lines and pay a fair price for water. After all we have our own ratepayers to protect," the alderman added.

A copy of the application to the province to have the water rights revert to the Crown, was read to aldermen.

It asked that Central Saanich be allowed to "divert, use and store" 1,300,000 gallons a day and that the point of diversion be the pump house on the west side of the lake.

Central Saanich officials have maintained that the water rates on the peninsula would be away out of line if they were forced to pay five cents a thousand gallons.

They point out that the water for which Victorians pay 12½ cents is treated, drinkable and delivered. The water for which Central Saanich was expected to pay five cents was lying in the lake, untreated and undelivered.

Nematode Policy Firm

Ban Remains Insists Plant Officer

"Absolutely not true" was the reaction of federal plant protection officer Neville Mayers Thursday to a published report that the government had promised to remove the ban in nematode-free areas of Saanich this summer.

The federal officer also disagreed with the statement in another newspaper that the government would buy all nursery stocks from growers who suffered severe loss due to an export ban on ornamentals.

"There have been no changes in policy, and no promises of lifting restrictions," the plant protection officer said.

SURPLUS STOCK

The government, he said, has only gone so far as to say it intends to buy the surplus nursery stock—definitely not all stock.

He explained that the surplus was stock normally sold to outside markets, and because of the quarantine it could not be shipped.

NOT ABSORBED

"Some of the larger nurseries depend on outside markets, and grow specifically for export. The shipments were stopped, and the surplus could not be absorbed by the local markets," Mr. Mayers said.

The federal officer said it has been suggested that some of the surplus stock be used in landscaping of federal buildings within the quarantine area.

SOIL TESTS

The quarantine was placed on the southern tip of Vancouver Island last summer when golden nematodes were discovered on some farm lands in the McHugh Valley of the Saanich Peninsula.

He said it was hoped that in time the restrictions could be lifted as a result of studies made in Ottawa of the findings from soil survey tests. The tests will continue for an indefinite time on the cultivated areas.

MORE CHECKS

Survey crews are now working on the second round of soil testing on the peninsula, and expect to complete it sometime in July.

Mr. Mayers indicated the infestation of the microscopic worm on Vancouver Island might be confined to a comparatively small area.

He said it would take the results of many soil survey studies before any of the fields in the quarantined area could be declared clear.

New String Teaching Gets Results

Young Stars Twinkle by Suzuki

By WILLIAM THOMAS

If you ever wondered what creates a musical genius or a child prodigy who can put a violin under his chin and play great music before he even starts school, then you have something in common with Shinichi Suzuki.

Probably the difference between us and Mr. Suzuki is that he did something about it. He decided that if a child can learn to speak his own language well before he goes to school, then this must be accomplished by ear training and simple repetition. He then applied this to the teaching of the violin.

His revolutionary method that has two- and three-year-olds playing, practising and loving it will soon be tried in Victoria by Mrs. Violet De Long.

Six Starting

Mrs. DeLong, a music teacher in the Greater Victoria School District, will start with a group of six pre-school children. She recently completed training at the Oberlin Conservatory in Ohio, where the Suzuki Method was demonstrated.

Suzuki theorizes that what has been assumed to be in-born genius is really a rather common talent that has been stimulated and developed at an early age. Genius is common, he says, but favorable environment is not.

Mrs. DeLong's pupils will be accompanied by a parent who must agree to learn alongside the child, so that the basic rules for training at home can be reinforced.

Tiny violins, about one-third conventional size, have been imported from Japan for the project and will be rented at a nominal cost to the youngsters.

If the concept is remarkable, the results are astounding.

At first the going is slow, as pupils master the simple tune, Twinkle, Twinkle Little Star.

This slow beginning tends to irritate many parents, who seem to expect a new selection each lesson and measure progress by quantity rather than quality.

The deep-seated spirit of competition and desire of parents to get ahead is probably the toughest obstacle the method has to overcome.

The feeling is common, for Mr. Suzuki has developed a standard counter to the suggestion. He asks, "And where are you hurrying?"

If anyone doubts the method, it's worth remembering that eight-year-olds are able to play Bach's Concerto in A Minor and those old men of 10 are playing Mozart's violin concerto in A Major.

These are not just the top students, but all those who have carried out their training properly.

For all this early period the pupils do not see a sheet of music. They learn purely by ear. Some teachers introduce scores at about age nine.

Trend Set?

Mrs. DeLong could be setting a trend here that will provide the badly needed pool of string talent that could supplement our symphony.

It's a bit of a grind at first for parents, but after a lesson or two, pride takes over.

Old Hands Help Freshman Wives

OTTAWA (CP)—The opening of a new session of Parliament can be an exciting social whirl or a lonely nightmare for the wives of newly-elected members of Parliament.

Mrs. William Bendickson of Kenora, Ont., wife of Liberal Senator Bendickson, says social affairs were a lot more formal in 1945 when she and Mr. Bendickson first came to Ottawa.

A former president of the Parliamentary Wives Association, which represents all parties, she believes more is done today to make younger women feel at home.

Although wives of backbenchers didn't get the best seats in the Senate for the opening Tuesday, they were invited to all the social events held in connection with it.

Mrs. David MacDonald, wife of a freshman Conservative MP from Prince riding in Prince Edward Island, said:

"I couldn't really see everything, but I did enjoy it. The color and excitement were wonderful."

Mrs. MacDonald, who got a few days off from her job as a school teacher in O'Leary, P.E.I., to see her husband take his seat in the Commons, plans to move to Ottawa when the school year ends.

She said she was fortunate to have Mrs. Angus Maclean, wife of the former Conservative minister of fisheries, to steer her through the Government House reception and other parties held at the opening.

One wife already settled in Ottawa with her MP husband is Mrs. Ed Schreyer from the Manitoba riding of Springfield. Mr. Schreyer, of the New Democratic Party, is a former member of the Manitoba legislature.

Mrs. Schreyer says she doesn't find manners of dressing or entertaining in Ottawa different from Winnipeg.

In Three Countries

Love for Flower Causes Headache

ROME (AP)—Man's love for a pretty flower has given three continents a multi-million-dollar headache. It is rapidly getting worse with no real cure in sight.

The problem is the beautiful water hyacinth, which a garden lover transplanted from its native South America to his pool in Louisiana. Then it was taken just as innocently to South Africa, expanded into the Congo and, somewhere, between 1956 and 1958, reached the Sudanese portion of the Nile. It has become such a ruinous, river-clogging menace that Louisiana and Florida have to finance costly eradication campaigns. More than $1,700,000 a year is being spent along the Nile alone to keep the fast-spreading plant from breaking through control points in the Sudan and infesting Egypt's lower Nile. It has also started choking fish ponds in East Pakistan.

Representatives of 18 African nations have appealed to the UN food and agriculture organization to help fight the flower. The water hyacinth looks like a gardener's joy with 10-inch stalks of blue-mauve or pale lilac delicately held above swaying rosettes of big, green, rounded leaves.

But it spreads so fast from drifting seed and spreading tendrils that no pool can hold it. First it chokes off the landings. Then it breaks into floating islands, growing ever larger until navigation even by canoe is impossible. It sneaks up irrigation canals and clogs pumps.

The food and agriculture organization reported that along 1,000 miles of the Nile, the clogging plant extends down 30 feet, consuming oxygen from the water so that fish cannot live.

Ann Landers

Dear Ann Landers: I am a 14-year-old girl who is looking forward to her first date. It won't be until next year but I want to be ready. These questions might seem stupid to girls who are already dating, but they are a matter of life and death to me and I don't know where to get the answers.

Should I be ready when the boy comes to the door or should I linger in my room, so I won't appear too anxious?

Should we stay a while and talk to my parents or should we go right on?

If we go to a restaurant after the show should I let the boy order first so I don't go over his budget?

If he doesn't open the door for me should I just stand there until he does?

I have heard it is wrong to let a fellow kiss you on a first date. If he tries, how do I stop him without getting into a fight? I don't want my first date to be my last. Thank you.—MISS DUBIOUS.

Dear Dubious: I don't think your questions are stupid. I think they are sensible. Here are my answers:

Be ready when the boy arrives. The girl who keeps her date waiting is inconsiderate.

Don't rush the boy out of the house or he may think you are ashamed of your parents—or of him. A five-minute chat is just about right.

If you are concerned about going over the boy's budget, ask him for a suggestion. Then order the same thing.

Some boys are not accustomed to opening doors for girls. If you just stand there they will know (eventually) it is expected, and they will learn that it is the thing to do.

Don't be afraid to say no to a good night kiss—whether it's the first date or the 10th date. A kiss should not be payment for an evening's entertainment. Kiss a boy only when you feel genuinely fond of him, and when you know he feels the same way about you.

Officers Elected

GANGES—Mrs. Cecil Springfield was elected president of St. Mark's Chancel Guild at the quarterly and annual meeting held recently at her home.

Dr. R. B. Horsfield opened the meeting with prayer. A donation of $25 will be sent to the Anglican Theological College, also to Canon Martin in Hong Kong to help in his work there.

The spring tea, the proceeds of which are forwarded to the World Primate Relief Fund, has been tentatively set for April 27 at the Salt Spring Island Golf Club.

It takes a lot of serious concentration to build a tower. These hard-working little girls and boys are members of a large nursery school class at the

Holiday For Mother

Housekeeping not being one of the most stimulating jobs imaginable, most housewives find it a good thing to get away from occasionally.

But with small children to care for many mothers who are in favor of getting out and away for a day find it difficult to put theory into practice.

Now the YWCA has again come to the rescue of the "trapped housewife". Mum's day is made as easy as possible with supervised nursery school facilities right in the Y while mother relaxes with exercise and interesting lectures.

Starting at 10:15 on Tuesday mornings the children are taken to the nursery while mothers have a choice of activities including keep fit classes, relax and rebound, modern dance, swim instruction, demonstrations, lectures and recreational swimming.

Speakers give talks on fashion, interior planning, laundry care, flower arranging and a host of other topics. And lunch is served at the Y too.

During this break from household routine children are taking part in a well-planned nursery school program including group activities, rhythm band singing and games.

The baby-sitting is a bargain at $5 per child for the 10-week period. Price of the course for mothers is only another $5.

Machine Brain Speedy, Precise

With a language of its own, a fantastic memory, and an ability to think (almost), the computer has indeed grown up. Speaking before the University Women's Club of Victoria, Mr. Peter Darling, director of the Computer Centre at the University of Victoria, traced the development of this great servant of man.

The computer age began in the early 1950's and has undergone a veritable "population explosion" in the last ten years. In 1955 there were 100 computers in the United States, and in 1965 over 30,000 of them were being utilized. The machine brain is fantastically precise and speedy; today it can process as many as 30,000,000 instructions per second. Although the modern computer is so much faster, it is at the same time more compact. Components that in earlier models occupied the space of a 2 lb. box of chocolates are now contained on a small plastic disc the size of a thumb nail.

Mr. Darling outlined the present role of the computer in our community in such fields as accounting, research, information retrieval, and optimization of design or plans in engineering. More elaborate applications used in other parts of the country are in air reservations, operations research evaluating war strategy, and traffic control such as carried on in Toronto where computer control increases the rush hour use of the main city arteries by 25 per cent.

In the education field, the computer centre at University of Victoria is being used as a training centre for students, for research, and in administrative work. As an example, Mr. Darling pointed out that by analyzing the marks of first year students and correlating them with their high school grades, the university can learn if the entrance requirements are correct.

Mr. Darling concluded by stating that job opportunities in the computer field are almost limitless. Not only are university graduates needed for programming, analyzing, and mathematical fields, but also high school graduates for data processing, tabulating, key punching operators and service personnel for the manufacturers.

Mrs. A. H. Cameron introduced the speaker, and he was thanked by Mrs. H. H. Macartney.

At the conclusion of the meeting coffee was served by the social committee under its convener, Mrs. T. C. Evans.

It's Just Those Clothes Sizes!

Boyfriends No Problem For Not-So-Tall Gals

By BARRY JOHNSON

The first thing to understand about a girl who is five-foot-four is that she doesn't think of herself as small.

The second thing is that you'd better not knock half an inch off her height.

OWN CONTENT

These were the findings of a modest survey of less-than-towering Victoria girls, in the subject of a suggested beauty contest for scaled-down beauties.

The suggestion came from five-foot-two Pauline Duffy of Bradford, England, a secretary who thinks small girls (her words) should have their own Miss World contest.

SOME BENEFITS

"It's a good idea," said 17-year-old Judi Nicholson, who at five-foot-four-and-a-half — nearly five is a bit over Miss Duffy's suggested limit.

Judi said being her size has no disadvantages — she makes her own clothes — and several benefits.

"You have a wide choice of boy friends, for one thing," she said. "There's an awful lot of short boys — especially when you're still in high school."

WE'RE TOPS

Sharon Ekins, five-foot-three-and-a-half, didn't think there was much point in a beauty contest for the smaller girls.

"Who needs a contest — we're tops anyway," she said firmly.

She, too, finds boy friends no problem — but she does have trouble getting clothes that fit right.

BOYS DON'T MIND

Lady Apsley Dies at 65

CIRENCESTER, England (AP)—Lady Apsley, Conservative member of Parliament for Bristol from 1943-45, died here at her Gloucestershire home.

Lady Apsley, who had been ill for a year, was about 65. She was the mother of the Earl of Haverhill. Her husband, Lord Apsley, was killed on active service in the Second World War.

"They like short girls because they can beat them up," she quipped.

Fran is five-foot-two and likes it just fine.

"I like being small just because I am small," said Sherry Lapa, 18-year-old University of Victoria student.

"But it does help if you've got a short boyfriend."

CLOTHES PROBLEM

But the problem of finding clothes, she says, is "terrible."

"It's impossible. I take size five junior petite," she says.

There are clothes available that fit me, but they are designed for 11-year-olds."

No doubt there are 11-year-olds who match Sherry's five-foot-two.

DANCING

Jane Ballis, 21, who says she's "about five-two-and-a-half," just wishes she had another inch-and-a-half. That's because five-foot-four is about ideal for a ballet dancer, and she is studying ballet.

"Other than that, I don't mind it at all. I make most of my own clothes and, with high heels, there's nothing wrong."

Perhaps Priscilla Gregory, 19, and five-two, summed it up: "Boys like a girl who looks up to them."

Extra Seat Welcome

Provincial cabinet ministers had little or no comment Thursday about changes in the proposed federal redistribution map for B.C., which would give the province one more seat in the House of Commons.

Premier Bennett and several ministers declined comment. But Attorney-General Bonner said the one extra seat in Parliament was the only welcome feature of the new plan.

B.C. now has 22 seats in Parliament. "By the time we get 30 more seats, they may start paying more attention to this province," the attorney-general said.

Poverty Traps Rural Families

TORONTO (CP) — Forestry Minister Sauve said here a stratum of Canadian society lives trapped in poverty and unable to be productive members of the community.

Studies show that almost 500,000 rural families have an income of less than $3,000 a year, he said in an address here to the Empire Club of Toronto.

Planners were Elaine Whitmore, Gayle Rowy, Carmen Apted, Elizabeth Wilkins, Pat Lindstrom, Shelly Winter, Penelope Chapman, Katherine Gray, Margaret-Anne MacLure, Heather Piddock, Andrew Mortimer, Janice Eaton, Carol Rayfuse.

Richard Bird, Ann Satterfield, Carol Neville, Mary-Ann Bentley, James Ramsay, Stephen Calder, Paula Barnard, Jean Rolston, Sheila Drew, Beverly Violinists: Daniel Barer, DeWayne Parfitt and Diane Hayward. Mrs. E. J. Bland was accompanist.

Border Crossed By Thousands

HONG KONG (AP) — Thousands of Hong Kong Chinese have poured across the border into China to spend lunar new year holidays with families and friends. British authorities predicted a record 850,000 Chinese would cross the border to China during the holiday.

Centennial Row Still Unsettled

No meeting has been scheduled by the Greater Victoria Centennial Society to reconsider the recent decision to hire U.S. professionals for local celebrations, president Walter Dodsworth said Thursday.

Mr. Dodsworth, who with society secretary C. C. Wyatt was consulting city solicitor T. P. O'Grady at City Hall, said a meeting would be held, but he was not prepared to say just when.

He had no immediate comment on the question. Recently Mr. Dodsworth admitted that he knew considerable feeling had been aroused by the decision to hire a U.S. company for the 1967 festivities.

He pointed out that he was not present at the meeting at which the decision was made, but would not sign any contract which did not have the backing of the Greater Victoria Intermunicipal Committee.

The matter would be discussed by intermunicipal representatives early in February, he said at that time.

Plan Voice at Meet

Eric Clarke, new president of Victoria Life Underwriters, will represent the local chapter at the underwriters' national meeting in Toronto Jan. 24 to 28.

Other members of the local executive for this year are Dick Prette, past president; Bill Kendall, first vice-president; Perry Barradell, Len Nyquist, Jack Adams, Hans Soebagio, Don Tuttle and Ron Pottinger.

First Viewing at Montreal

Plane Now Developed For Vertical Take-Off

MONTREAL (UPI)—Ever since the helicopter first flew in the 1940s pilots have longed for a plane that would rise like a helicopter and fly forward with the speed of an ordinary plane. Now they have one.

Canada's first vertical take-off aircraft (called VTOS for short) made its public debut Thursday at the sprawling Canadair plant in suburban Carterville.

The CL-84 looks like an ordinary plane. It has two engines a single wing and the regular tail assembly.

WING TILTS
The novelty of the aircraft is that the wing tilts upwards through 90 degrees and vertically lifts the plane off the ground.

It can hover like a helicopter or the pilot can slowly change the angle of the wing and move off like a conventional aircraft.

NOT FIRST
The CL-84 is not the first of its kind in the world but it is the first in Canada. Canadair officials are optimistic about its future. They believe it is ideal for jungle warfare conditions where runways are out of the question.

Helicopters now in use in Viet Nam can land almost anywhere and are armed with rockets and machine guns. But, their Achilles heel is their speed.

LIKE STONE
Helicopters are slow and vulnerable. Once the engine is hit, they plummet to earth like a stone. They can't glide in for lengthy forced landings. The CL-84 can.

The prototype demonstrated Thursday flew around the airport at speeds up to 125 miles per hour. Officials said the aircraft had been wind tunnel-tested at speeds near 350 MPH.

30 Flight Captain, Victoria

Plane Now Developed For Vertical Take-Off

It would be equally useful for commercial purposes flying passengers from city centre to city centre.

For example, it could take off vertically from downtown Montreal, change to horizontal flight, speed to Toronto at 350 mph and land vertically in the Queen City less than an hour from takeoff.

COMING THING
Many aviation authorities believe this type of aircraft may be the coming thing. Vertical takeoffs from city to city would shorten overall travelling time by doing away with long car or bus rides through traffic to the airport.

The radical aircraft was designed in Canada and work started in late 1963 as a joint Canadair-Canadian government development.

NAVAL USE
The first plane rolled out of the hangar a little more than a year ago, and its first test flights were completed in May 1965.

According to officials, the plane would be ideal for naval use. It could take off from an aircraft carrier like a standard aircraft, pick up a survivor at sea, then land on a destroyer like a helicopter.

Labor Leader Killed in U.S.
LAS VEGAS, Nev. (UPI)—Ralph Alsop Sr., a southern Nevada labor union official, was killed Wednesday night by an assassin who waited in ambush outside his home and then fired a shotgun blast from close range.

Alsop, 54, a stormy figure in labor circles, fell mortally wounded as he opened the gate of his home in Paradise Valley.

THREW UP TONS
The Costa Rican volcano of Irazu threw up 80,000,000 tons of volcanic sand in its 1964 eruption.

'Dachau for Dogs' Raided in Maryland

BALTIMORE, Md. (AP)—A junk yard where state police and Humane Society officials found 103 dogs destined for sale to research centres was described today as "a Dachau concentration camp for dogs."

Lester J. Brown was arrested and charged with 28 counts of cruelty to animals. Bail was set at $1,500.

"We found a dog frozen to death in a box," said State Police Capt. Thomas S. Smith.

McMahon said the raid was part of a nation-wide crackdown on dog dealers. He said dealing in dogs is a $50,000,000 annual business.

Garden Notes

The Filial Ones

By M. V. CHESNUT

In my last column I described a few of the new vegetable varieties which will be making their debut in the seed catalogues this year. Today I think we might have a look at some of the 1966 model flowers and shrubs.

Quite a few of the new plants this year are F-1 hybrids, and I think a word of explanation is in order here. The term F-1 means Filial One or first generation, and refers to plants grown from the first seeds obtained after mating two pure-bred plants. In the animal world, if you were to mate a purebred collie to a purebred golden Labrador, the pups would be F-1 hybrids. The pups' offspring, in turn, would be F-2 or second-generation hybrids.

When two purebred races come together like this, their first offspring are noted for their exceptional vigor and health. This phenomenon, known as heterosis, has never been satisfactorily explained, but it has given us some fantastically vigorous hybrid corn and tomatoes and some exceptional new flowers.

The fly in the ointment here is that the hybridizing or mating of the purebred parents must be done afresh every year, for much of the hybrid vigor is lost in the F-2 and succeeding generations. If you save seed from hybrid corn, for instance, you are sowing F-2 seed, and while it will give you some pretty fair corn, it won't have anything like the vigor of its F-1 parents. In the production of F-1 seed, while shortcuts exist with certain kinds of plants, much of the pollinating must still be done by hand; consequently, F-1 hybrid seed is always expensive.

Among the F-1 hybrid flowers this year is a new race of snapdragons called Bright Butterflies in a mixture of brilliant colors. The plants stand about 3 feet tall and branch out from the base, producing a second and third crop of bloom after cutting.

Another new snapdragon race is a color mixture called Little Duffer, standing only 10 inches tall but branching to make a compact clump of bloom a foot or more across.

This year, for the first time, we will have an F-1 hybrid carnation called Petite Pink. The plants are more com-act and more branching, and with stouter stems than the older kinds, bearing fully double 2-inch clear pink flowers, fragrant with the typical old clove scent, so often missing in modern carnations.

Takao Sakata, the Japanese genius who has given us so many fine hybrid flowers and vegetables, has come up with two new flowers this year: a Sweet William called Red Monarch and the new Giant Majestic race of pansies.

Red Monarch is a Sweet William of the purest red, without markings of any kind, and while Sweet William has always been considered a biennial, blooming in its second year from seed, the new hybrid will bloom the same year if sown early. It is recommended that half your packet of seeds be sown indoors in late March to bloom in midsummer, the other half sown in late summer to bloom the following spring. The Giant Majestic pansies are very large and stand out by reason of their purity of coloring; they come in a full range of pansy colors and keep on blooming even in hot weather—older pansies have a tendency to pack up and call it a day when the weather turns warm.

Age Gulf Widens

SYDNEY HARRIS

Watching a TV commercial for a well-known airline one of my sons asked me if I had ever flown it. I told him I had taken the line to Europe about a dozen years ago but had not flown it since.

"Was that on a propeller plane?" he wanted to know. "Yes," I said. "There were no jet planes flying at that time." He frowned. "Didn't that make you nervous?"

"Why no?" I answered. "That was the only kind of plane there was. We didn't know anything different. It was a fine plane."

When he learned we didn't even have movies on hand in those benighted days I'm sure my youth. My children find it inconceivable that I never knew television even in my early adulthood; it is as though I grew up in a cave and read hieroglyphics etched on rocks by the light of a campfire.

A large part of the breakdown in communication between the older and the younger generations must be attributed to this growing lack of a common tradition. People used to grow up and die in pretty much the same world they were born into; now the world of our maturity is not the world of our adolescence in most respects.

We are strangers to our own recent past; so how much more must we seem like strangers to our own children. For when technology changes so rapidly values change with them. It is impossible for instance to explain the social and emotional impact of the Great Depression to those who were not born then. Those of us who lived through it are as different from the others as war veterans are different from civilians.

The past can be understood and learned from only when it merges gradually into the present. The sudden and abrupt transitions of the last few decades have been violent insults to our sense of continuity—and those who repudiate a past they have never known are left with few guidelines to plot a humanly endurable future.

The Little World of SHEILAH GRAHAM

Anita Wins Chinchilla

HOLLYWOOD (NANA) — Anita Ekberg won her case against that Roman furrier who sold her a $25,000 chinchilla coat for a mere $2,500, on the understanding that the Swedish amazon would get him oodles of publicity. The court ruled she could keep the coat, when the fur merchant sued her after demanding, "so where is all the publicity?" There wasn't any because Anita has become very domesticated of late. She stays home with her husband Bucky Natting. Probably uses the coat as a rug, or bed cover.

We don't often offer "blind" items, but this one, if names were used, would make two partners unhappy. The wife of a top veteran star is having a heavy romance with a top veteran director. Perhaps when they read this item they might stop the music and return to their own partners, neither of whom are yet aware of the situation. But they soon will be. The couple is getting careless.

Telly Savalas of the bullet smooth head plays the maniacal Sergeant Dagnieu in Beau Geste at Universal. This role made overnight stars of Noah Beery, Sr., and later Brian Donlevy. Telly told me he has signed with Universal for one movie a year with options — "The first time I ever had a contract with a studio. I've also been offered a part in MGM's picture, The Dirty Dozen." Telly took a chance when his friend Omar Sharif was in Hollywood over Christmas, called and asked him to stay with him. Omar was delighted. Movie stars are often the loneliest people in the world because everyone assumes they are in a continual state of being wooed and dined. It isn't so. You can call a top glamour girl at seven of a Saturday evening, and she is, more often than not, free for dinner that night. Remember Marilyn Monroe, all alone on the Saturday night that she died?

There is moaning at the bar at the Globe Theatre in London. Because the new Sir Alec Guinness play, Incident at Vichy, goes straight through without an interval. The only time in recent years for this to happen in London was the Marlene Dietrich show, but that only lasted an hour, and the bar was open before and after. I hear that most of the theatres on Broadway will soon be equipped with built-in alcohol.

Producer, Charlie Feldman — Casino Royale, The Group, Anyone for Venice, What's New Pussycat, etc. — is playing hide-and-seek with the press in London. Charlie has all of the caution of a man who was the best agent in Hollywood before he turned producer. Texas Feldman who made millions of John Wayne, Claudette Colbert, and Irene Dunne, is mentioned a few. He was the first of the packagers — star, story, and director. He lives in Hollywood, New York, and London. But try finding him.

How did Zsa Zsa lose all that weight — about 17 pounds? By never losing more than two pounds a week. That way it stays off. The big problem for dieters, says Zsa, is to keep the pounds off, when you have reached the low level. "I eat everything, but diet as soon as I gain a pound."

Claudia Cardinale ought to be back in Rome soon. "I bought my house two years ago," she writes, "but I've slept in it only 11 weeks." Claudia has been busy all over the world making movies, what else? ... Ty Hardin who has adopted Madrid and vice versa, says the only trouble with the city is "there are few good eating places." He assures me he will never marry again—he's had two marriages, two divorces. "I can't be tied down," says Ty.

Robert Taylor will campaign for Ronald Reagan for governor of California, and meanwhile is considering another TV series. Wouldn't surprise me if Robert himself runs for some office. With his handsome looks he could do quite well. A good face and a good voice—and charm—can do wonders on television. Whether that is sufficient reason to go into politics is something else.

Awake, Poor Pedro

JACK SMITH

It was only a small news item official decree, banned the siesta today, ... "SANTIAGO (UPI)—Chile, by So dies another charming human custom for which there is no longer any time.

Awake, Pedro. The revolution is here.

Chile is not the first Latin nation to give up the siesta, nor will it be the last. For the undeveloped of the world, there must be no further dozing in the noonday sun.

We are all on Johnson time now. Everybody off at noon for exactly 17 minutes at the automat. America is the metro nome. The western world must tick when the U.S. ticks, tick when the U.S. ticks.

It was a pleasant custom, though. The Spanish gave it the name, but they didn't invent it. Siesta is probably as old as civilization, which began in the hot valleys of the Tigris and the Nile, where there was no less wisdom to lie in the shade of a fig tree or a palace when the sun was overhead. I doubt if a stone was raised on the pyramids from noon to three.

Tourists may think of siesta as a quaint custom of dusty Mexican villages, where doors are bolted, shutters closed and streets emptied, while peons sit motionless against adobe walls, sleeping under their sombreros beside their sleeping dogs.

But in fact, until very recent years, siesta still tranquilized great cities such as Rome, which even now has not fully awakened from its blissful

slap. Officially, Rome had to give it up out of sheer logistical necessity. The traffic jam was too stupendous. Everybody rushed to work in the morning in a din of beeps and curses, then rushed home again at noon for cheese and wine and sleep, then back again at four, then home again at seven.

Here comes Sophia on her bicycle this way. There goes Mastriano on his motor scooter that way. There goes Gina on her bicycle in the opposite direction of Lucia, and Rozzano in the opposite direction to Giancarlo, amid burping herds of little Fiat and gaseous buses, with polizi at every corner like roosters, blasting at their whistles, and finally Julietta's bicycle colliding with Alfredo's motor scooter and Luigi's Fiat running into Anjanetta's bicycle and pedestrians leaping this way and that, striking at each other with salamis ...

It was too much. By the time everybody got back to work, full of wine and cheese and empty of emotion, they fell asleep.

Awake, Pedro. Listen to the bell. What's that you say? Ees too hot for work, senor. Patience, Pedro. It will be cool. The great society has air conditioned America. Tomorrow which even now has not fully

Diefenbaker Roasts CBC

Diefenbaker

Colonist Ottawa Bureau

OTTAWA—John Diefenbaker trimmed his ship for action in the Commons last night and fired off his first non-confidence salvo that could sink the Grits.

He also launched one of his bitterest attacks on the CBC, attacking the Crown corporation for what he called its work for the Liberals in the election campaign and for painting the U.S. as one of the great enemies of mankind over the Viet Nam war.

Mr. Pearson countered with a stout defence of his announced programs and spelled out a $60,000,000 aid program for education. This will increase the per capita grants to universities to $5 from the current $2.

ANOTHER VOTE

The prime minister also made it clear that any defeat in the Commons would result in another election. This last announcement was a clear indication that John Diefenbaker would not be called on to form a government.

It was one of the most furious attacks ever made on the state-run network and was coupled with a demand that the top brass of CBC be called before Parliament to explain.

'BRAIN-WASHING'

The "People at the top" in the CBC, Mr. Diefenbaker fumed, are brain-washing Canadians over the U.S. involvement in the Viet Nam war—"where U.S. citizens are dying for you and not for me."

State Secretary Judy LaMarsh, who is now responsible to Parliament for the CBC, immediately asked the CBC to comment on the Diefenbaker blast.

CBC COMMITTEE

She said she was "taken back" by the charge that the CBC had helped the Liberals.

At the same time, she confirmed that she is now "tossing around" the idea of setting up a "watchdog committee" for hearing MPs' gripes about the CBC.

His first charge was that the Liberals "used the CBC for political purposes during the last two or three days of the election campaign" in November.

PROPAGANDA

"They spread propaganda across the country," he said.

Opening his second blast, Mr. Diefenbaker pointed out that external Affairs Minister Paul Martin takes the stand that the U.S. is in Viet Nam, because,

Miners Dig For Trip

TRAIL (CP)—Miners agreed Thursday to ask for one week's paid vacation plus travelling expenses so they can attend the Montreal world's fair next year.

Delegates to the Canadian convention of the International Mine, Mill and Smelter Workers' Union said workers "also have done as much to build Canada" should get a free trip to enjoy the centennial-year fair.

BATTERED BOAT FOUND--EMPTY

By BOB PETHICK

Searchers Thursday found the empty and battered boat in which three Victoria boys went missing Saturday. There was no sign of the boys.

Engineless and upside down at the tide mark on Dungeness Spit, 12 miles east of Port Angeles, lay the 12-foot clinker-built boat in which Dennis Powell and Ronald Hynds, both 18, and Wade Squire, 17, left Oak Bay Marina Saturday night.

The boat was spotted by Hynds' uncle, Keith Hynds, and pilot Al Rout of Victoria Flying services. Both men had flown many hours in search of the missing boys.

WOOD GOUGED

When they landed and pulled the boat up from the waterline, there was nothing inside. The bulwarks and stern showed signs of pounding and rubbing in sand, and on the stern where the engine had hung there was nothing but gouges in the wood. The boat was in good condition. Veteran mariners said Thursday night that the boat's location was in keeping with tidal patterns in the strait over the past few days, indicating a long period adrift.

SEARCH TODAY

An aerial beach search by the United States Coast Guard will be made today if weather permits. The search, which will be made by helicopters based at Port Angeles, was requested by Inspector George Mackay, head of Victoria RCMP subdivision.

Pilot Rout was about to call off the search and head for home when the boat was spotted.

MEASUREMENTS

"We landed and pulled it up," said Mr. Hynds. They took measurements of the boat and took a fitting of the sternpost in hopes that Ralph Wherry, owner of the boat would be able to identify it.

But he couldn't, so they started out again from Patricia Bay after refueling.

COAST GUARD

Meanwhile, the Canadian Coast Guard cutter Ready and a Rescue Co-ordination Centre helicopter arrived on the scene, and Mr. Hynds' aircraft with Mr. Wherry aboard arrived in time to see the boat being picked up by helicopter and carried over to Patricia Bay.

"We lost about two hours of daylight," said Mr. Hynds.

"If the boat is there, there are probably other things there, too," he said.

"It could be the motor rubbed off and is close to where the

Premier's Death Denied

LAGOS (AP)—Nigeria's military government officials denied Thursday reports published overseas that Lagos authorities had announced the death of former federal Prime Minister Sir Abubakar Tafawa Balewa.

Information Director Cyprian Ekwensi said no announcement had been made on the fate of Balewa, who was kidnapped in the early hours of last Saturday.

Balewa's press secretary, Moses Awoyinka, also said no announcement was made and "I know nothing of what happened."

Bill Rejected, Premier Shaky

ROME (UPI)—Premier Aldo Moro's shaky centre-left coalition government received a severe setback when Parliament rejected a state nursery bill on which he had won a confidence vote only 24 hours previously. The Chamber of Deputies voted 250 to 221 to reject the bill.

Gasoline Addict Nipped Quart a Week

He Had Tiger on His Back

LONDON (Reuters)—An auto mechanic in India, who accidentally swallowed gasoline while siphoning a tank, became probably the world's first gasoline addict, the British Medical Journal says.

The journal prints an article by Dr. Vinodh Karani, formerly registrar in the department of neurology at a Bombay group of hospitals, which says the mechanic drank the gasoline when he was 37 years old.

From then on, he took about a quart of gasoline a week, either drinking it or inhaling a soaked wad, and was "oblivious of everything else."

Dr. Karani said the man's legs became weak and he was admitted to a hospital. For the first week he found it difficult to overcome the addiction, but gradually, he improved. After eight months, he recovered completely.

The case appears to be the first of intoxication resulting from the triorthocetyl phosphate content of gasoline, the doctor writes.

Sir Roy Warns Rhodesia:

'Beware the Ides of March'

Mr. Roy Welensky, former prime minister of the defunct Central African Federation, predicts that economic chaos will result from southern Rhodesia's plans. But he doesn't think the country can be spared into submission. A Canadian Press reporter who visited Rhodesia outlines Mr. Welensky's views in this story.

By DAVE McINTOSH

SALISBURY Rhodesia (CP)—In the airport bar at Lusaka Zambia the waiter refused a proffered Canadian dollar in payment for a beer. "Only American dollars bwana" he said.

Not 50 yards away an RCAF Hercules transport plane was disgorging emergency gasoline supplies for Zambia.

It is an hour's run by Viscount airliner from Lusaka to Salisbury. The plane was crowded with whites. There was not a single African passenger.

It was a fine flight and the landing here was smooth. Salisbury's airport is impressive by any standards and especially after Lusaka's collection of old Nissen huts.

There is little delay. The immigration officer is courteous. The immigration form requires you to state your race. A reply such as "100-yard dash" doesn't raise the ghost of a smile. The officer looks into a plain winter-bleached Canadian face and asks only: "Have you been in Rhodesia before?" The customs officer is a young woman also polite and efficient.

The downtown hotel is modern, equal to any in Canada. Yarmouth bloaters are on the breakfast menu. Toast is served in a silver bag. There is tea—but no tea bags.

U.K. Turns Screw, Fuel Ration Cut

LONDON (UPI)—The British government has told Rhodesia's Chief Justice Sir Hugh Beadle that it will not negotiate with rebel Prime Minister Ian Smith or his government, informed quarters said Thursday.

At the same time, the government made it a crime to export chrome from Rhodesia in a further escalation of Britain's economic war against its breakaway colony. (Chrome is one of Rhodesia's chief metal exports.)

In Salisbury, the Rhodesian government turned the screw tighter on motorists for the second time in a week Thursday because of the British-imposed oil embargo. Gasoline ration will be cut by 25 per cent on Jan. 25—for most motorists a cut from four to three gallons per week.

Old Hall 50 Years Young

By MILDRED KURTZ

PARKSVILLE—Mrs. Mary Sutherland, owner of the Island Hall Hotel at Parksville, recently announced the appointment of S. Robert Canning to the position of general manager of the hotel. Mrs. Sutherland had previously performed the office of manager herself.

Mr. Canning comes with a long career in hotel business behind him and just prior to moving to Parksville was food and beverage manager of the Royal Towers Hotel in New Westminster. He originally came from Medicine Hat, Alberta where he started his hotel career with the Cantalini Hotel and since coming to British Columbia he has operated hotels at Abbotsford, Ladysmith and Courtenay.

He has been on the west coast since 1943 when he was serving in the Royal Canadian Air Force as food service supervisor.

TRADITION FORGED

The Island Hall Hotel which has become a tradition here and is known in many parts of the world will celebrate in Canada's Centennial year its 50th anniversary and Mrs. Sutherland will celebrate twenty years of ownership.

FOOD EXPERT
Mr. Canning is an executive chef and a member of the Food Service Executive Association. He is well-known for supervising artistic food displays for buffets and amusements.

Aug. 28 1916 the first sod was turned at the site of the original part of the building. The hotel was built for two courageous young women Winifred Philpot and Joan Foster who interrupted a world tour to come to Parksville to establish an old English country inn.

It was almost built at Cameron Lake and according to history construction was well advanced there when the two women were persuaded that the seaside would have more attraction for visitors.

STONE FIREPLACE

The original part of the hotel was of timber construction so planned that the large lounge dining room and bedrooms all looked out over the sea. The heart of the Island Hall was a large stone fireplace with a 16-foot mantel of Douglas Fir and alcove seats on either side in old English style.

The original bedrooms were just four walls no clothes closets and washstands with basins and pitchers provided for ablutions. Coal oil lamps and candles were used for the first

first of all to the kitchen area and bedroom wing of the main building and in later years the property was extended and another building added known as the Playhouse.

A convention hall was later added to this, then the hotel annex, a swimming pool and health spa and the Victoria ballroom.

In 1965 another banquet room in the main building, a new main lounge overlooking the sea, enlarged main dining room, new office and the Croft were added.

BUFFETS

A regular staff of 24 looks after the running of the hotel and this is augmented mostly by students in the summer months to about 42.

Mr. Canning has announced that hot and cold buffets for lunch on Saturday and Sunday will soon be a feature of the hotel.

NEAR SEA

With the new facilities 400 can be accommodated for conventions. There are three banquet rooms the newest can seat some 200 at a meal and the dining room now has room for 130 at one sitting.

The new hotel lounge faces the sea and its focal point is still a huge stone fireplace which blends equally with the antique and new furnishings of the room. Bedrooms have recently all been re-furnished and re-decorated and have wall-to-wall carpets.

Wage Boosts To Be Sought

Next Chicago Mayor?

VANCOUVER (UPI)—American Negro comedian Dick Gregory Wednesday told Canadians the reason he planned to run for mayor of Chicago was to "stop the riot" he predicted would occur there.

Gregory, playing at a theatre-restaurant here, prophesied that Chicago would be the next racial trouble spot in the U.S. He said Martin Luther King has planned several demonstrations in the city in the spring.

When asked his chances of being elected mayor in the 1967 election, Gregory said, "I'll get 90 per cent of the Negro vote and 10 per cent of the white vote, and that will be enough to win."

Gregory, one of the central figures in the Negro civil rights struggle in the U.S., said, "We'll solve the race problem in five years or it will solve us."

America as it is now will cease to exist, he said.

Duncan Death Negligence Hearing Postponed

DUNCAN—Preliminary hearing into a criminal negligence charge against Lawrence Richard Lawson, 24, Duncan, was adjourned Thursday to Feb. 9 after Mr. Lawson informed the magistrate he is trying to get legal help through the John Howard Society.

The charge of unlawfully causing the death of Donald Larry Olson, 21, Duncan, by criminal negligence in operation of a motor vehicle, was laid late last year.

It followed an accident on Cowichan Lake Road about one half mile west of Berkeley's Corner.

The mishap occurred early Dec. 28.

WALKING ON ROAD

The crown alleges Mr. Olson was struck by a car driven by the accused while Mr. Olson was walking on the road.

For the convenience of two witnesses, Mrs. Rolande Rosen from the RCMP crime detection laboratory at Vancouver and Duncan physician Dr. Joseph Pawlowski, their testimony was heard before adjournment with the consent of Lawson.

ARRESTED

A total of 10 crown witnesses were on hand for the hearing.

Dr. Pawlowski said "Olson died of asphyxiation when his upper dental plate was thrust back and lodged in the throat."

Mrs. Rosen said she tested blood samples of Lawson, which showed an alcohol content of .12 per cent.

EXCITED

Dr. Pawlowski, who had given Lawson a medical check-up at Duncan RCMP cells, said "his speech was coherent but he appeared excited."

He said he found bruises on Lawson's scalp and face and one of his eyes was swollen.

So far, Lawson has not been able to raise bail of $3,000. He is in custody.

Witnesses Differed

Conviction Quashed By Duncan Court

DUNCAN—The conviction of Peter Craighead Wadsworth, Duncan, was quashed Wednesday in county court at Duncan.

Earlier Mr. Wadsworth had been convicted of causing a disturbance on Labor Day weekend at Maple Bay in 1964. Judge I. A. Hanna of Nanaimo said "in the original charge the scene of the incident was given as Beaumont Avenue, but it took place on a landing wharf and not near Beaumont Avenue at all."

The judge also noted witness accounts differed, and identification was not fully established. Mr. Wadsworth's counsel was Duncan lawyer David Williams, and Victoria lawyer Dermot Owen-Flood represented the crown.

Deer That Stayed Up for Adoption

By PETER TAYLOR

NANAIMO—Anybody driving by the Juck DeClark farm at Cassidy, eight miles south of Nanaimo, will see a placid herd of cattle grazing on the farm's 160 acres, but with them will be a seven-month-old deer.

Henry is the deer. He got his name from Juck DeClark's brother, Henry, who knocked the deer down on the Nanaimo Lakes Road.

Henry DeClark was driving his logging truck along the highway last June when Henry the deer was struck by one of the timbers sticking out from the truck.

He seemed pretty close to death, but Henry DeClark brought him to his brother's farm, where he was tended with care and drank from a bottle.

Now he grazes in the field, still gets an occasional bottle, but likes bread as a delicacy.

Henry is perfectly free to leave any time he wants, but he prefers to stay on the farm.

He's not afraid of people, and wanders into the DeClark home after the DeClark boys.

"He's real cute, and a lovely specimen of a deer," Mrs. DeClark said.

Unfortunately the local game warden has warned the DeClarks Henry could get dangerous when he has horns and is full grown.

Now they are looking for a home for him. A zoo or a park would be ideal.

The DeClarks could turn him loose in the bush but Mrs. DeClark said he wouldn't have a chance.

He's just too friendly and is unfamiliar with life in the wilds.

If anybody knows of a home for Henry the DeClarks would like to hear of it. It's a chance to obtain a beautiful male deer, presently standing 18 inches high with horns just showing as bumps on his head.

Prospectors Seek Aid To Get Custom Mill

TOFINO—A group of prospectors active in Clayoquot Sound area have held a meeting to discuss interesting the government to help press for a company to establish a custom mill in the district.

A spokesman for the group said "there is a number of promising gold and copper prospects in the area. But it is difficult to interest large exploration companies in anything on the west coast of the Island."

Dr. Pawlowski, who had given Lawson a medical check-up at Duncan RCMP cells, said "his speech was coherent but he appeared excited."

He said he found bruises on Lawson's scalp and face and one of his eyes was swollen.

So far, Lawson has not been able to raise bail of $3,000. He is in custody.

The group said this is shown in the development of Brynnaur Mine near Kennedy Lake which has production of more than 1,000,000 tons of iron ore annually.

Another example the prospectors point to is development of Western Mines at Buttle Lake, and the large body of copper ore outlined by Falconbridge Nickel Mines Ltd., on Catface Mountain, four miles from Tofino.

The prospectors said a custom mill was operated by the department of mines at Prince Rupert some years ago.

They said that mill contributed a great deal toward the development of mining properties near Prince Rupert.

The prospectors will prepare a brief for submission to the mines department, and support will be requested from chambers of commerce and the B.C. and Yukon Chamber of Mines in Vancouver.

Water Rates Climb In Royston Area

ROYSTON—A forecast that water rates would rise in the Royston Improvement District if voters failed to pass a recent plebiscite appears to be true.

Late in December voters were asked to approve the change from an improvement district to a district municipality. The vote failed.

Trustees of the area were extremely disappointed with the rejection of the plebiscite.

Reports indicate that a $1 hike in the water rate will be required to meet the 1966 budget.

A general meeting has been called for Jan. 26 at which rates will be discussed.

Also on the agenda will be the resignation of Cec Harper.

His resignation was submitted, according to his letter, because opponents of district municipality had claimed "incompetent thinking" planned the change.

He felt these people should be willing to become trustees to deal with the problems of the district.

Mr. Harper said if the new status had been approved, water would have been free this year, instead of costing more money.

He said the government would have made a grant of $20,000.

Two weeks ago he asked the harbor master to institute some form of parking of the wharves to stop trespassing at will, and Mr. Stevenson is anxious to see this start as soon as possible.

Associated Engineers recommended water for Courtenay, Comox, Arden, and Sandwick be pumped from the Puntledge River.

But the cost of such an operation has risen sharply in the last eight months.

A report last April said the cost would be 10 cents per thousand gallons to the city of Courtenay.

But the latest report said 10 cents is not feasible and predicted a cost of 23 cents.

Mr. Brewster has been in the Alberni Valley for 18 months. His family, including four children, takes an active interest in sports.

He served with the RCAF in the war, was mentioned several times in dispatches, and won the OBE.

No Point Meeting Without Them---Hammer

Mac-Powell Officials 'Should Hear Protest'

By MARY TAYLOR

PORT ALBERNI—Mayor Les Hammer said officials of MacMillan, Bloedel and Powell River Ltd. should attend the pollution protest meeting called for Sunday.

"I see no point in the meeting without them," the mayor said. "I've had meetings with them, and I don't know all the answers."

Mayor Hammer said he has been in constant contact with Mac-Powell officials since last week.

"TERRIBLE" Mayor Hammer has not decided whether he will attend the meeting, called by pollution fighters George McKnight and Colin Wilson.

He said the fallow problem is "terrible."

But Mayor Hammer commented "I resent Mr. Wilson's remark that people should picket city hall (over pollution)."

He said "I think this implies that we, the city officials, are not doing all we can on this problem."

"I've said before and still say, one municipality cannot fight a big corporation like MacMillan Bloedel and Powell River Ltd., successfully."

Invitations had been extended to both city councils, to officials of MacMillan, Bloedel and Powell River, the Chamber of Commerce and presidents of all political groups in the Twin Cities.

Said Mr. Wilson "This is beyond politics!"

Mr. Wilson will chair the public meeting, and George McKnight will be one of the speakers.

Mr. McKnight has also given notice of his intention to appeal tax assessments on behalf of citizens in badly-affected areas.

The mayor said long-lasting lawsuits and litigation with a giant corporation could take years and bankrupt the city treasury.

Effective province-wide air pollution control measures, the mayor said, would solve the problem without costing the city an incalculable amount of money.

"People often bring up the point that a similar problem used to exist at Trail," the mayor said.

"The company there threatened to close down if pollution regulations were enforced and costs rose too high. Trail is now cleaned up, but it was not the result of municipal action, the clean-up came only when the U.S. government took action."

"It is not practical to compare the pressure of our local councils with the pressure that can be exerted by a senior government," said the mayor.

On Gabriola

Gunman Aided Snow In Downing Lines

GABRIOLA ISLAND—Someone gave the snow a hand knocking out lines, during the holiday power outage.

The someone did the job with a rifle. B.C. Hydro workers, making repairs following the devastating Boxing Day storm, found one of the three lines to Gabriola was almost severed by a rifle bullet.

Four strands of the seven-strand conductor had been cut through, and the weakened line came down under the weight of snow, knocking out a second line at the same time.

The one remaining line carried power to Gabriola as soon as service was restored.

A B.C. Hydro spokesman said "more people on Gabriola could have had power sooner if it had not been for the rifle damage to the line."

Further inspection of the balls on the line, which serve as a warning to aircraft, revealed that each marker contained three to five bullet holes.

Air Rival Praises Extra Trips

CAMPBELL RIVER—An airline official here has praised another air service for increased trips to the north island.

He said such lengthening would allow DC-6s aircraft to land at this community.

"Campbell River is already the busiest seaplane charter base in the world and the land facility must keep up with the water charter."

Mr. Macadam said he understands if the runway is lengthened, PWA will fly DC-6s into Campbell River.

Trans-Mountain runs a charter amphibious service.

Mr. Macadam said the chamber of commerce, municipal council, and other bodies should request the federal government to take action in improving Campbell River airport.

Last year the federal government completed hard-topping and paving of the 4,200-foot runway.

Mr. Macadam said this summer lights will probably be installed for night flying.

"Campbell River cannot rest on its laurels or feel complacent that we have a good airport. We must keep moving with the times to provide a modern communications centre."

Province Enters Search For Water Solution

By RUTH MCKELLAR

COURTENAY—The provincial government's Water Rights Branch will bring in its own recommendations on the Comox Valley water supply situation March 1.

This was learned following a meeting where another report on the situation was handed down, the report from Associated Engineers.

Attending the meeting was a representative of the Water Rights Branch, who said "the government is very concerned" about the water supply in the Comox Valley.

Associated Engineers recommended water for Courtenay, Comox, Arden, and Sandwick be pumped from the Puntledge River.

But the cost of such an operation has risen sharply in the last eight months.

A report last April said the cost would be 10 cents per thousand gallons to the city of Courtenay.

But the latest report said 10 cents is not feasible and predicted a cost of 23 cents.

The engineers said B.C. Hydro requires repayment for the amount of water taken, based on the amount of power lost.

NEW PROPOSAL In view of this situation, they proposed a pumping system adequate for all communities, using the present Browns River and adding a pumping station to take water from the Puntledge River.

The cost of pumping water is one of the chief factors in the additional cost.

The proposed plan now calls for stage one and two with a third plan possible in later years if additional outside areas wish to enter the system.

Plan one to supply the immediate parties concerned would cost $1,127,000 and part two, seen as likely to be instituted in some 10 years, $639,000, making a total outlay over 25 years of repayment in the amount of $1,766,000.

CHLORINATION The amount includes the cost of chlorination, another matter the city of Courtenay has been facing for some time.

Engineers speaking to the meeting stated the regional district was the most reasonable facility to put the water system into operation. This would require a further amendment to the letters patent of the regional board.

Director Leaving

ROYSTON—Director of the Royston Community Club recreational program, Stan Shigehiro, has tendered his resignation.

He will assume new duties as the program supervisor for the North Vancouver Community Centre complex on Jan. 31.

He currently is attached to the RCAF as a recreation specialist.

Ald. Geoff. Browning told the meeting Courtenay was prepared, as an alternative, to discuss the possibility of being a water seller.

This would mean water would be taken to the boundaries of the other areas and from there they would re-sell to their own users through their own system.

Old Hands Help Freshman Wives

OTTAWA (CP)—The opening of a new session of Parliament can be an exciting social whirl or a lonely nightmare for the wives of newly-elected members of Parliament.

Mrs. William Bendickson of Kenora, Ont., wife of Liberal Senator Bendickson, says social affairs were a lot more formal in 1945 when she and Mr. Bendickson first came to Ottawa.

A former president of the Parliamentary Wives Association, which represents all parties, she believes more is done today to make younger women feel at home.

Although wives of backbenchers didn't get the best seats in the Senate for the opening Tuesday, they were invited to all the social events held in connection with it.

Mrs. David MacDonald, wife

of a freshman Conservative MP from Prince riding in Prince Edward Island, said:

"I couldn't really see everything, but I did enjoy it. The color and excitement were wonderful."

Mrs. MacDonald, who got a few days off from her job as a school teacher in O'Leary, P.E.I., to see her husband take his seat in the Commons, plans to move to Ottawa when the school year ends.

She said she was fortunate to have Mrs. Angus Maclean, wife of the former Conservative minister of fisheries, to steer her through the Government House reception and other parties held at the opening.

One wife already settled in Ottawa with her MP husband is Mrs. Ed Schreyer from the Manitoba riding of Springfield. Mr. Schreyer, of the New Democratic Party, is a former member of the Manitoba legislature.

Mrs. Schreyer says she doesn't find manners of dressing or entertaining in Ottawa different from Winnipeg.

In Three Countries

Love for Flower Causes Headache

ROME (AP)—Man's love for a pretty flower has given three continents a multi-million-dollar headache. It is rapidly getting worse with no real cure in sight.

The problem is the beautiful water hyacinth, which a garden lover transplanted from its native South America to his pool in Louisiana. Then it was taken just as innocently to South Africa, expanded into The Congo and somehow, between 1935 and 1958, reached the Sudanese portion of the Nile. It has become such a ruinous river-clogging menace that Louisiana and Florida have to finance costly eradication campaigns. More than $1,700,000 a year is being spent along the Nile alone to keep the fast-spreading plant from breaking through control points in the Sudan and infesting Egypt's lower Nile. It has also started choking fish ponds in East Pakistan.

Representatives of 18 African nations have appealed to the UN food and agriculture organization to help fight the flower. The water hyacinth looks like a gardener's joy with 10-inch spikes of blue-mauve or pale lilac delicately held above awaying rosettes of big, green, rounded leaves.

But it spreads so fast from drifting seed and spreading tendrils that no pool can hold it. First it chokes off the landings. Then it breaks into floating islands, growing ever larger until navigation even by canoe is impossible. It sneaks up irrigation canals and clogs pumps.

The food and agriculture organization reported that along 1,000 miles of the Nile, the clogging plant extends down 30 feet, consuming oxygen from the water so that fish cannot live.

Ann Landers

Dear Ann Landers: I am a 14-year-old girl who is looking forward to her first date. It won't be until next year but I want to be ready. These questions might seem stupid to girls who are already dating, but they are a matter of life and death to me and I don't know where to get the answers.

Should I be ready when the boy comes to the door or should I linger in my room, so I won't appear too anxious?

Should we stay a while and talk to my parents or should we go right on?

If we go to a restaurant after the show should I let the boy order first so I don't go over his budget?

If he doesn't open the door for me should I just stand there until he does?

I have heard it is wrong to let a fellow kiss you on a first date. If he tries, how do I stop him without getting into a fight? I don't want my first date to be my last. Thank you.—MISS DUBIOUS.

Dear Dubious: I don't think your questions are stupid. I think they are sensible. Here are my answers:

Be ready when the boy arrives. The girl who keeps her date waiting is inconsiderate.

Don't rush the boy out of the house or he may think you are ashamed of your parents—or of him. A five-minute chat is just about right.

If you are concerned about going over the boy's budget, ask him for a suggestion. Then order the same thing.

Some boys are not accustomed to opening doors for girls. If you just stand there they will know (eventually) it is expected, and they will learn that it is the thing to do.

Don't be afraid to say no to a good night kiss—whether it's the first date or the 100th date. A kiss should not be payment for an evening's entertainment. Kiss a boy only when you feel genuinely fond of him, and when you know he feels the same way about you.

Officers Elected

GANGES—Mrs. Cecil Springfield was elected president of St. Mark's Chancel Guild at the quarterly and annual meeting held recently at her home.

Other officers named were Mrs. John R. Sturdy, vice-president; Mrs. L. F. Nicholson, secretary; Mrs. F. I. Atkins, treasurer. Members of the executive are Mrs. Dorothy Atkins, Miss Friena Atkins, Mrs. H. Stafford, Mrs. Douglas Wilson and Mrs. J. B. Acland. Dr. R. B. Horsfield opened the meeting with prayer. A donation of $25 will be sent to the Anglican Theological College, also to Canon Martin in Hong Kong to help in his work there.

The spring tea, the proceeds of which are forwarded to the World Primate Relief Fund, has been tentatively set for April 27 at the Salt Spring Island Golf Club.

Mrs. Dorothy Atkins was appointed convener.

Diefenbaker Roasts CBC

Premier's Death Denied

LAGOS (AP)—Nigeria's military government officially denied Thursday reports published overseas that Lagos authorities had announced the death of former federal Prime Minister Sir Abubakar Tafawa Balewa.

Information Director Cyprian Ekwensi said no announcement had been made on the fate of Balewa, who was kidnapped in the early hours of last Saturday.

Balewa's press secretary, Moses Awofinla, also said no announcement was made and "I know nothing of what happened."

Bill Rejected, Premier Shaky

ROME (UPI)—Premier Aldo Moro's shaky centre-left coalition government received a severe setback when Parliament rejected a state nursery bill on which he had won a confidence vote only 24 hours previously. The Chamber of Deputies voted 250 to 221 to reject the bill.

Colonist Ottawa Bureau

OTTAWA—John Diefenbaker trimmed his ship for action in the Commons last night and fired off his first non-confidence salvo that could sink the Grits.

He also launched one of his bitterest attacks on the CBC, slamming the Crown corporation for what he called its work for the Liberals in the election campaign and for painting the U.S. as one of the great enemies of mankind over the Viet Nam war.

Mr. Pearson countered with a stout defence of his announced programs and spelled out a $60,000,000 aid program for education. This will increase the per capita grants to universities to $5 from the current $2.

ANOTHER VOTE

The prime minister also made it clear that any defeat in the Commons would result in another election. This last announcement was a clear indication that John Diefenbaker would not be called on to form a government.

Mr. Diefenbaker's attack was one of the most furious ever made on the state-run network and was coupled with a demand that the top brass of CBC be called before Parliament to explain.

'BRAIN-WASHING'

The "people at the top" in the CBC, Mr. Diefenbaker fumed, are brain-washing Canadians over the U.S. involvement in the Viet Nam war—"where U.S. citizens are dying for you and for me."

State Secretary Judy LaMarsh, who is now responsible to Parliament for the CBC, immediately asked the CBC to comment on the Diefenbaker blast.

WATCHDOG'S

She said she was "taken back" by the charge that the CBC had helped the Liberals.

At the same time, she confirmed that she is now "tossing around" the idea of setting up a "watchdog committee" for hearing MPs' gripes about the CBC.

His first charge was that the Liberals "used the CBC for political purposes during the last two or three days of the election campaign" in November.

PROPAGANDA

"They spread propaganda across the country," he said.

Opening his second blast, Mr. Diefenbaker pointed out that external Affairs Minister Paul Martin takes the stand that the U.S. is in Viet Nam, because, Continued on Page 2

Pearson Switch on Viet Nam

Disregard Geneva

By FRANK KELLY
Colonist Ottawa Bureau

OTTAWA—The ultimate solution to the war in Viet Nam may be the recognition of two independent and neutral Vietnamese communities. Prime Minister Pearson told the Commons last night.

"So long as the problem is approached in terms of partisan regimes or national liberation struggles we run the risk of obscuring the basic fact that there are now two communities in Viet Nam."

DEFENDS PROGRAM

"We also run the risk of misjudging the possibility of one community gaining complete ascendancy over the other by military means or by subversion, or by any other means not based on the clearly expressed choice of the people concerned," he said.

Mr. Pearson spent a good deal of his speech defending government programs outlined in the throne speech discussing international affairs.

POLICY CHANGE

"His statement on Viet Nam was regarded as a significant departure from stated American and Canadian policies to date."

Both countries have generally favored a return to the terms of the 1954 Geneva Accord which called for eventual reunification of North and South Viet Nam and free elections.

Mr. Pearson admitted that acceptance of the two Viet Nams, like two Germanies and two Koreas, would not be particularly satisfying to anyone.

Hanoi Urges Attacks Amid Holiday Truce

SAIGON (AP)—Radio Hanoi jolted hopes that a more lasting peace in Viet Nam might follow the military lull marking the advent today of the lunar new year.

The North Vietnamese station broadcast calls of both the Viet Cong guerrillas in South Viet Nam and a North Vietnamese spokesman for harder attacks.

"Let our whole people march forward to strike continually deadly blows at the U.S. aggressors, annihilate and disintegrate many puppet (South Vietnamese) troops and win greater victories," said the lunar new year's message of the Viet Cong.

Gasoline Addict Nipped Quart a Week

He Had Tiger on His Back

LONDON (Reuters)—An auto mechanic in India, who accidentally swallowed gasoline while siphoning a tank, became probably the world's first gasoline addict, the British Medical Journal says.

The journal prints an article by Dr. Vinodh Karani, formerly registrar in the department of neurology at a Bombay group of hospitals, which says the mechanic drank the gasoline when he was 17 years old.

From then on, he took about a quart of gasoline a week, either drinking it or inhaling a soaked wad, and was "oblivious of everything else."

Dr. Karani said the man's legs became weak and he was admitted to a hospital. For the first week he found it difficult to overcome the addiction, but gradually, he improved. After eight months, he recovered completely.

The case appears to be the first of intoxication resulting from the triorthocetyl phosphate content of gasoline, the doctor writes.

U.K. Turns Screw, Fuel Ration Cut

LONDON (UPI)—The British government has told Rhodesia's Chief Justice Sir Hugh Beadle that it will not negotiate with rebel Prime Minister Ian Smith or his government, informed quarters said Thursday.

At the same time, the government made it a crime to export chrome from Rhodesia in a further escalation of Britain's economic war against its breakaway colony. Chrome is one of Rhodesia's chief metal exports.

In Salisbury, the Rhodesian government turned the screw tighter on motorists for the second time in a week Thursday because of the British-imposed oil embargo. Gasoline ration will be cut by 25 per cent on Jan. 25—for most motorists a cut from four to three gallons per week.

Welensky

Sir Roy Warns Rhodesia:

'Beware the Ides of March'

Sir Roy Welensky, former prime minister of the defunct central African Federation, predicts that economic chaos will result from sanctions imposed on Rhodesia. But he doesn't think the country can be starved into submission. A Canadian Press reporter who visited Rhodesia outlines Sir Roy's views in this story.

By DAVE MCINTOSH

SALISBURY Rhodesia (CP)—In the airport bar at Lusaka Zambia the waiter refused a

proffered Canadian dollar, in payment for a beer. "Only American dollars Bwana" he said.

Not 50 yards away an RCAF Hercules transport plane was disgorging emergency gasoline supplies for Zambia.

It is an hour's run by Viscount airliner from Lusaka to Salisbury. The plane was crowded with whites. There was not a single African passenger.

It was a fine flight and the landing here was smooth. Salisbury's airport is impressive by any standards and especially after Lusaka's collection of old Nissen huts.

There is little delay. The immigration officer is courteous. The immigration form requires you to state your race. A reply such as "100-yard dash" doesn't raise the ghost of a smile. The officer looks into a plain winter-bleached Canadian face and asks only: "Have you been in Rhodesia before?" The customs officer is a young woman also polite and efficient.

The downtown hotel is modern, equal to any in Canada. Yarmouth bloaters are on the breakfast menu. Toast is served in a silver rack. There is tea—but no tea bags. If Rhodesia crumbles this ho-

SEARCH TODAY ON U.S. COAST

By BOB PETHICK

Searchers Thursday found the empty and battered boat in which three Victoria boys went missing Saturday. There was no sign of the boys.

Engineless and upside down at the tide mark on Dungeness Spit, 12 miles east of Port Angeles, lay the 12-foot clinker-built boat in which Dennis Powell and Ronald Hynds, both 18, and Wade Squire, 17, left Oak Bay Marina Saturday night.

The boat was spotted by Hynds' uncle, Keith Hynds, and pilot Al Rout of Victoria Flying services. Both men had flown many hours in search of the missing boys.

WOOD GOUGED

When they landed and pulled the boat up from the waterline, there was nothing inside. The bulwarks and stern showed signs of pounding and rubbing in sand, and on the stern where the engine had hung there was nothing but gouges in the wood. The boat was in good condition.

Veteran mariners said Thursday night that the boat's location was in keeping with tidal patterns in the strait over the past few days, indicating a long period adrift.

SEARCH TODAY

An aerial beach search by the United States Coast Guard will be made today if weather permits. The search, which will be made by helicopters based at Port Angeles, was requested by Inspector George Mackay, head of Victoria RCMP subdivision.

Pilot Rout was about to call off the search and head for home when the boat was spotted.

MEASUREMENTS

"We landed and pulled it up," said Mr. Hynds. They took measurements of the boat and took a fitting off the sternpost in hopes that Ralph Wherry, owner of the boat would be able to identify it.

But he couldn't, so they started out again from Patricia Bay after refueling.

COAST GUARD

Meanwhile, the Canadian Coast Guard cutter Ready and a Rescue Co-ordination Centre helicopter arrived on the scene, and Mr. Hynds' aircraft with Mr. Wherry aboard arrived in time to see the boat being picked up by helicopter and carried over to Patricia Bay.

"We lost about two hours of daylight," said Mr. Hynds. "If the boat is there, there are probably other things there, too," he said.

Moroccan Minister Sought by French

PARIS (AP)—France issued an arrest warrant Thursday for Interior Minister Mohammed Oufkir of Morocco and two other persons believed involved in the Mehdi ben Barka political kidnapping.

The announcement from the public prosecutor's office carried serious implications on the state of relations between France and Morocco, already strained by the incident.

Oufkir admitted he was in Paris when ben Barka, a leftist Moroccan exile, was kidnapped Oct. 29, but he has declined invitations from French authorities to come back to aid in the investigation.

The warrant also named Maj. Ahmed Dini, director of the Moroccan internal security service, and another person listed only as Lardi Chouki.

BELIEVED SLAIN

The French government is concerned because it has been established that French secret service agents assisted in the kidnapping. Ben Barka is believed to have been slain.

Only Wednesday, President de Gaulle ordered a shake-up in the secret service.

Sir Roy said he believes Britain wouldn't cast a veto on Rhodesia's behalf because the repercussions to the rest of the end to the fighting must be held with those who are fighting there," Thant told a press conference. He said the UN cannot play an active part in the peace talks because South Viet Nam, North Viet Nam and Communist China are now members of the world organization.

close attention to the rules pays off.

Lastly, it's always safer to start by seeing your doctor, just to make sure that it's athlete's foot and not something else. And, if he recognizes the case as a genuinely severe one, he can use some of the newer prescription medications, or even resort to ultra-violet or even X-ray when a case warrants it.

Dear Dr. Molmer: If you are never thirsty and water makes you uncomfortable, should you drink it anyway? I prefer soup and fruit juices. I haven't been able to tolerate water for years.

I am 70 and have a healthy appetite, sleep well, walk two to three miles a day, and still work hard.—H.G.

I suspect your intolerance is psychological rather than physical. Just the same, it doesn't matter how you get water into your system, so long as you get it. Fruit juice is mostly water. So's soup. How about milk, tea, coffee?
